Utahn sues Ford for $7 million

BOISE (UPI) — A Utah man filed a $7.75 million lawsuit in Boise federal court Monday, claiming Ford Motor Co.'s 1975 Maverick is "defective" and allegedly caused his wife and child to burn to death in a 1976 rear-end collision.

Von C. Blackburn of Salt Lake County, who filed the suit on behalf of himself and his minor children — Alan, Lori Jo and Thomas — alleges his wife and daughter died when their Maverick "burst into flames upon impact from the rear" in an accident that occurred in Bingham County, Idaho.

The lawsuit claims the Detroit vehicle manufacturer incorporated in Delaware "failed to provide proper and adequate fire wall between the fuel tank and passenger compartment" in the Maverick model.

Blackburn claims the accident caused "great mental anguish and permanent psychological damages to Lori Jo Blackburn and Thomas Von Blackburn by seeing their mother and sister burn to death all as a result of negligence, breach of duty, breach of warranty, design defects and intentional acts" allegedly done by Ford.

Blackburn seeks a jury trial and asks for an unspecified amount of "special damages" and court costs, $250,000 general damages for the death of his daughter, $1.5 million for his wife's death and $500,000 each for Lori and Thomas' "mental anguish."

Exuberance misplaced

If you picked exuberant Angelo Repole, 10, left, as the winner of the annual U.S. Monopoly Championships in New York Monday, you're wrong. Worried-looking Dana Terman, 24, right, a tough-talking car salesman, won by bankrupting his opponent by controlling the Park Place-Boardwalk sector. Repole, a fifth grader, retired in tears.

New threats surface as Americans freed

TEHRAN, Iran (UPI) — Moslem students released 10 more American hostages from the U.S. Embassy Tuesday, ending a tense day of waiting for the second group to be freed.

The released Americans, who like the first three were paraded at a press conference, immediately headed toward Tehran's international airport to board a U.S.-chartered jet to be flown out of the country.

The Swissair jet arrived earlier Monday night after the 10 hostages spoke to newsmen.

The freeing of the 10 Americans brought to 13 the number of hostages released, but left 49 still held in the diplomatic compound by militant Iranian students demanding the return of the deposed shah to stand trial for treason.

The 10 hostages, six blacks and four women, checked in at the airport for a flight to Paris, airline sources said.

Only blacks and women have been released in the first crack in the embassy stalemate, fulfilling a promise by Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini.

Despite the releases, militant students who took over the embassy called for countrywide demonstrations against the United States on Wednesday to build up the campaign for the shah's extradition.

Acting Foreign Minister Abol Hassan Bani-Sadr tacitly warned of a break in relations with the United States in a message to Iranians.

Bani-Sadr said relations between Tehran and Washington had been practically non-existent "but we must quickly think of solutions to end our dependence on America before official severance with America."

He also sent a special envoy to the United Nations to press for a Security Council meeting. But the strong feeling in the Council was Iran should first respond to its demand for the immediate release of diplomatic hostages at U.S. Embassy.

James Hughes, 24, one of six blacks to be released along with four women, was asked in Tehran whether his captors told him if he would be treated better if he cooperated.

He replied: "I was blindfolded, tied up and made to sit on a table and the guy (one of his captors) hinted in a way if I didn't tell them what they wanted to know, he said, then maybe some of us would have to be shot.

"And I told them that was the risk of the job," Hughes said. "I have only been here a month so what could I tell him?"

The disclosure came during an emotional news conference where other hostages said two more women and a black captive were still being held by the militants, presumably because they were considered "spies" and exempt from Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini's order to free blacks and women.

The captives — four women and six blacks — were paraded before reporters as a chartered Swissair DC-8 landed in Tehran to fly them to a U.S. military base in West Germany to join three other Americans released earlier.

The hostages told reporters out of 49 other Americans in captivity, two were women and one a black employee of the International Communication Agency, successor to the USIS. It was the first time additional women hostages were mentioned.

The disclosure that women and a black would not be released was not disputed by the students. It was unclear whether the militants considered the two women and the black as "spies" and therefore not eligable for release under Khomeini's directive Saturday.

President Carter bluntly warned Khomeini against putting any of the remaining Americans on trial for spying and was backed up by U.N. Secretary General Kurt Waldheim.

"Such a step would be another flagrant violation of elementary human rights, religious precepts and international law and practice," Carter said. "Worldwide outrage at the detention of the hostages would be greatly heightened by any attempt to put these diplomatic personnel on trial."

Families rejoice at first releases

By United Press International

Families of three hostages freed from the U.S. Embassy in Tehran Monday said they were relieved and joyful, but the mother of one of 10 captives awaiting release first wept and then broke into song when she heard of her son was coming home.

The elated mother of David Walker, 25, a young Marine staff sergeant at the U.S. Embassy in Iran, said "I couldn't help but to break down" upon hearing word he would be released Tuesday.

"Oh, I'm so happy I don't know what to do," said Mrs. Arie Ruth Walker. "I really am. A relative called who saw it (the release announcement) on TV and she said, 'It's Ricky (Walker's nickname) and he looks well.'

Mrs. Walker broke into song when she said "happy."

She said she and her husband, a part-time Baptist minister, would pray for the remaining hostages, but felt "nothing is going to happen to them. I don't believe they're going to be harmed. They'll probably be released a few here, a few there."

Robert Vincent, whose brother, Air Force veteran James Vincent, 31, of New Orleans, La., is also scheduled to be released, said he would not comment on the situation for fear the excitement would harm a sister's medical condition.

The brother of Sgt. James Hughes, 30, of Metairie, La., said his family was happy with the impending release, but they were confused why blacks were being freed and not whites. Philip Bell said the news "uplifted" him.

The freed trio, two black Marine sergeants and a woman secretary at the embassy, were flown to Copenhagen, Denmark.

Laura May Reeder, mother of Sgt. William R. Quarles, 23, of Washington, D.C., said she never lost her faith her son would be returned to her.

"I always kept a lot of faith in what I believed — that eventually somebody would be released," she said.

Mrs. Reeder, 54, said she is unsure about how her son and the other 61 American prisoners were treated, adding, "But there're still a lot of innocent people there. What about their loved ones?"

Secretary Catherine Gross, 23, Cambridge Springs, Pa., may have been released because she wasn't "hostile" with her captors, her family members said.

"All you can do is hope that they release the rest of them," said her 16-year-old brother, Kevin.

Marine Sgt. Ladell Maples, the third freed hostage, said he had been treated well. Maples, 23, Earle, Ark., said he had spent most of his time in captivity eating, sleeping and reading.

Maples' mother, Jessie Maples, of Earle, said she could not celebrate until she was sure her son was safely out of the embassy.

About a dozen members of the Communist Workers Party demonstrated at the Daley Center in Chicago in support of returning the deposed shah of Iran but were taunted by about 300 lunchtime pedestrians. Police were called in to protect the demonstrators and no violence was reported.

About 250 to 300 pro-Iranian demonstrators marched through the San Francisco financial district calling for a return of the shah to Iran. The march was sponsored by the Revolutionary Communist Party and included a contingent of Vietnam Veterans against the War.

The marchers, escorted by motorcycle policemen, shouted, "Send the shah home" and "Hands off Iranian students."

About 200 Iranian students at Jackson State University staged a peaceful campus demonstration to express fears they would be treated like "criminals" by U.S. immigration officials during visa checks.

ERA suit judgment requested

BOISE (UPI) — Groups participating as friends of the court in Idaho's Equal Rights Amendment lawsuit petitioned U.S. District Court Monday seeking a summary judgment in favor of Idaho.

The petition comes from 17 organizations supporting Idaho, the plaintiff, to District Judge Marion Callister in response to a motion to dismiss the case filed by the U.S. General Services Administration, defendant.

Idaho's lawsuit, filed on behalf of Arizona, claims Congress violated the Constitution by extending time for ratification and the General Services Administration acted illegally in refusing to accept Idaho's rescission of its Equal Rights Amendment ratification vote.

The motion for a summary judgment, however, asks Callister to rule on the case based only on the contention that Congress' vote was illegal.

The petition states Article 1, Section 7 of the Constitution requires a two-thirds vote of Congress, rather than the simple majority vote and presidential signature used to extend the ratification deadline from March 22, 1979 to June 30, 1982.

The petition alleges that a ruling from Callister saying Congress' vote violated the Constitution would nullify the remaining claims in Idaho's lawsuit.

Callister has not ruled on either the organizations' request for summary judgment or the government's motion to dismiss the case.

In the government's motion, U.S. attorneys claim Congress, not the courts, has jurisdiction over the constitutional amending process. They also claim Idaho fails to present an adequate claim against which damages can be awarded.

Explaining erroneous alert taking more than 6 minutes

By JIM KLURFELD
Newsday

WASHINGTON — For about six minutes on Nov. 9 the computers of the North American Air Defense Command mistakenly warned that the Soviet Union had launched a nuclear attack on the United States.

It is going to take the Pentagon a lot more than six minutes to explain to the secretary of defense, the president and Congress what went wrong. All have asked for an explanation.

Defense Department officials are investigating the mistake and will not comment formally until the probe is completed, probably next week. But the error already has raised important questions, according to congressional and Pentagon sources. Among them:

•Why weren't any top-level defense officials, including the president, the secretary of defense and the chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staffs, notified of the alert?

•Why weren't the B-52 bombers that carry nuclear bombs deployed immediately, as has always been U.S. policy?

•What would have happened if either the United States or the Soviet Union had been operating under a policy of launching the missile on warning instead of the current policy of launch-after-attack? Such a policy might be the result of the next escalation in the arms race — the deployment of large, accurate land-based missiles such as the proposed MX system for the United States.

The preliminary Pentagon explanation is that a computer tape simulating a Soviet attack from submarine-launched ballistic missiles in the Pacific Ocean inadvertently was broadcast throughout the warning system. The result was that forces were on alert for about 10 minutes and the Federal Aviation Administration was told to notify all commercial aircraft to be prepared to land.

"It is correct that neither the secretary of defense nor the president were notified, but they were damn close to doing it," said one high-level Pentagon official. "There is a procedure to be followed in notifying the top officials," he added, "and I take it that they had not reached the point at which those calls were to be put out. There are certain checks that have to be made to make sure it is a real signal and when those checks were made it was discovered that it was a false alarm. But until the report is done, we won't know what really happened."

City manager supporters set forth reasons

By MARTY TRILLHAASE
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The city of Twin Falls is a complex business requiring professional administration, supporters of the city manager form of government say.

That needed expertise is provided by a trained city manager, the pro-manager argument continues, and responsiveness need not be sacrificed for professionalism.

The Committee For Retaining the City Manager Form of Government, a citizens group formed last week, will be trying to get that message across to voters in the closing days before the Nov. 27 special election.

The city manager form of government has worked well for Twin Falls during the past 30 years, committee chairman Egon Kroll said. Kroll, a former Twin Falls mayor, said the city is a complex, multi-million-dollar business requiring expertise at the top.

A city manager is chosen for his ability, special training and experience, Kroll said. Such expertise can not be guaranteed under the mayor form of government, he said. "I think it would be a step backwards to try and operate that way," Kroll said. "In Twin Falls, we're running an $8 million business. You need to have somebody in the position as manager that knows all the ins and outs."

One crucial area where a city manager's skill comes into play is federal grants, Kroll said. Here, a city manager's experience and training can be invaluable in enabling a city to receive federal dollars as well as complying with regulations.

"Nowadays, there are so many federal programs, whether you like them or not, that cities are involved in that it takes someone with special training just to keep up with them," he said.

Although a mayor's administrative assistant could assume much of these duties, hiring such an assistant would be expensive, Kroll said.

The system also insulates a city manager from political pressures, Kroll said.

"He has no election promises to keep and is not up for re-election every two to four years," he said. "I would say when I was at the head of our city government, I probably spent 75 percent of my time on city business handling problems when the general public just wanted to come in and visit and discuss and argue."

That's necessary for a directly-elected official, Kroll said, but it is also an inefficient use of time. "Since I was an elected official, I felt like it was my duty to listen to them, which I did."

That the city manager is insulated is one of the chief criticisms directed against the city manager system. Critics charge the system is not as responsive to voters as an elected mayor form would be.

That's not necessarily true, Kroll said. With seven directly-elected city council members, the city manager system can be every bit as responsive. But it is up to the people in office to provide that responsiveness, he said.

"I think it's very important in our city manager form of government for our city council members to take an active part in the operations of the city, and if they in turn find out that the manager is not functioning properly, then it's up to them to see that the situation is corrected," he said.

When the system is not functioning properly, it is more easily corrected than under the mayor form, Kroll added.

"The city manager can be removed with 30 days notice. An unsatisfactory mayor can only be removed from office by a recall election," he said.

Committee members also point to accomplishments made during the 30-year record of the city manager system in Twin Falls.

"I personally feel this system has provided us with a pretty efficient and effective government, and I think we have made progress in several areas," committee treasurer Joe

Nuclear waste site testing costs permit choice

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Nuclear Regulatory Commission received staff assurances Monday the costs of testing a prospective high-level atomic waste disposal site are low enough so so the government does not have to commit itself yet to a specific location.

John Martin, director of the NRC's waste management program, estimated at a briefing on proposed high-level waste repository licensing that the cost of screening prospective sites would be only $20 million to $25 million.

He said a significant financial commitment would not be made until "you get down to one site and start digging tunnels and main shafts."

Martin and his aides said a high-level repository for permanent storage of the most dangerous commercial nuclear wastes like spent reactor fuel probably could not be licensed and operating until 1992.

Martin said 1987 would be the earliest that the Energy Department, which is charged with developing and running the high-level repository, could complete its technical studies and apply for a site construction permit.

Sen. Gary Hart, D-Colo., has introduced a bill that would block the construction of new atomic reactors after 1985 if a permanent federal repository is not available then.

Pat Comella, Martin's aide, told the five NRC commissioners the Energy Department was expected to identify two prospective repository sites by 1982 on the basis of their surface characteristics. A third would probably be identified the following year, she said.

After the initial selections, detailed technical studies on each site would take several more years.

Ms. Comella said the Energy Department was currently studying five large regions of the country in hopes of finding suitable locations.

The NRC decided to postpone for a week the issuing of its proposed repository licensing procedures because Commissioner Peter Bradford wanted the extra time to file dissenting comments.

Kirkland takes over AFL-CIO UPI

Olive branch offered

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Former merchant seaman Lane Kirkland was elected the second president of the AFL-CIO Monday, ending the 24-year reign of George Meany, and immediately offered an olive branch to non-affiliated unions.

Kirkland, 57, was chosen for the $110,000-a-year post on the unanimous vote of delegates to the 13th biennial AFL-CIO convention after Meany gave a warm, seven-minute nominating speech from a wheelchair.

The 85-year-old Meany, whose once-powerful voice commanded the attention of presidents, decided to retire after a series of ailments incapacitated him since last April.

Meany praised Kirkland for his role in fostering better relations between the AFL-CIO and the Carter administration.

Rubble yields bodies

CARUTHERSVILLE, Mo. (UPI) — Rescue crews sifting through the charred rubble of the Chiffin Motor Hotel Monday found the bodies of two of three residents who had been presumed killed in the weekend fire.

Pemiscot County Deputy Sheriff Gary Hilburn said rescuers believed they uncovered the bodies of Carolyn Storey, 28 and her daughter, Christy, 3. Still missing was Agnes Allison, 63.

Utahn charged in wreck

MORGAN, Utah (UPI) — A man who drove a front-end loader into a railroad bridge where five locomotives and 42 cars of a freight train later jumped the tracks was being held in jail Monday on a charge of malicious mischief.

Jacob W. Pentz, 27, Devils Slide, was held in the Davis County jail in lieu of $25,000 bail. Pentz was arrested Sunday night after he was treated at McKay Dee Hospital for injuries he received in an auto accident prior to the loader mishap at Devils Slide in Weber Canyon.

SALT approval urged

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A key committee formally urged the Senate Monday to approve the controversial SALT II treaty but warned against expecting it would result in "significant, positive developments" in U.S.-Soviet ties.

The Senate Foreign Relations Committee's SALT report said rejection of the pact would likely harm relations between the two superpowers.

Committee staff members called the weighty report, which ran more than 500 pages, "a primer" for the December Senate debate on the second U.S.-Soviet Strategic Arms Limitation Talks treaty.

China protests Viet attack

PEKING (UPI) — China charged Tuesday that Vietnamese troops intruded "deep into Chinese territory" two weeks ago and said the incursion resulted in heavy loss of life.

The Chinese Foreign Ministry sent the protest note this morning to the Vietnamese embassy in Peking, the official Xinhua news agency said.

Attacks mark anniversary

By United Press International

Four Palestinian sea commandos were blown out of the water by the Israeli navy and terrorist bombs gutted two Jerusalem buses Monday to mark the second anniversary of Anwar Sadat's historic visit to Jerusalem.

President Sadat celebrated the anniversary at Mount Sinai and, in an appeal for world peace, declared the mountain where God gave Moses the Ten Commandments open to Jews, Christians and Moslems alike.

In Lebanon, Palestinian guerrillas and their leftist Lebanese allies vowed to fight any attempt by the Arab summit conference meeting in Tunisia to force them to leave positions near the volatile southern border with Israel.

Refugees moved back

BANGKOK, Thailand (UPI) — Anticipating a new flood of evacuees triggered by a major Vietnamese offensive against guerrillas in Cambodia, authorities began moving 13,000 refugees away from the tense border in southeast Thailand Monday.

Intelligence sources said Vietnam was expected to begin a major push soon against Khmer Rouge guerrillas loyal to ousted Premier Pol Pot, and the fighting would send hundreds of thousands of people fleeing to Thailand for safety.

Announcement planned

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Carter still plans to announce on Dec. 4 he will run for reelection, despite the continuing crisis over the American hostages in Iran, a spokesman said Monday.

Press secretary Jody Powell told reporters that Carter must adhere to certain primary "filing dates" in connection with his political campaign.

Mayor called to stand

PINEDALE, Wyo. (UPI) — Former Rock Springs, Wyo., Mayor Paul Watuha, testifying Monday in the murder trial of Ed Cantrell, said he suggested a city detective warn Cantrell not to go near the man he ended up killing a few hours later.

Cantrell, the former head of the Rock Springs police force, faces a charge of first-degree murder for shooting undercover narcotics agent Michael Rosa July 15, 1978. He has said he acted to protect his own life.

Today's weather

Turkeybiters will find weather to sharpen appetites

Twin Falls, Burley-Rupert, Jerome-Gooding areas:

Mostly fair through Wednesday. Chance of night and early morning fog. High temperatures today 35 to 40 degrees and in the lower 40s Wednesday. Overnight lows in the teens.

Camas Prairie, Hailey, lower Wood River valley:

Mostly fair through Wednesday except for a few patches of late night or early morning fog or low clouds in the valleys. High temperatures both days in the 30s. Overnight lows in the teens.

Synopsis:

Skies cleared over southern Idaho Monday but northern sections of the state were plagued by low clouds, fog and light snow left behind by a storm which crossed the state over the weekend.

In the Lewiston area, visibility was limited to a sixteenth of a mile much of the day by dense fog. And snow showers along the continental divide are expected to continue during today.

Temperatures were chilly over the entire state after Monday morning lows which were generally in the 20s but slipped to 12 degrees at Fairfield, 4 at Dixie and 8 below zero at Stanley.

The warmest reading Monday afternoon was 47 degrees at Payette and Weiser.

The extended forecast for southern Idaho from Thursday through Saturday calls for fair and cool with highs in the 40s and overnight lows in the teens and low 20s.

A winter storm brought heavy snows to southern Utah, southern Colorado, Arizona and New Mexico before moving into the plains today. Snow also fell across southern Montana and northern Wyoming. Storm watches were posted for much of Colorado and portions of New Mexico.

For northern sections of Nevada and Utah, clearing skies and cold temperatures are forecast today. Temperatures will range from highs in the 30s to lows of 10 degrees or below.

Winnemucca, Nev., was the coldest spot among national reporting stations at 8 above zero. Laredo, Tex., was the warmest with a high of 85 degrees.

Iranians set more free, drop hints

Joan Walsh, an embassy political officer, said the students were holding Katherine Koob, director of the Iran-America Society, a cultural center, and Elizabeth Ann Swift, a political officer.

The black hostage was identified as Charles Jones Jr. All three had arrived in Tehran recently, the hostages said.

The three freed hostages — a woman secretary and two black Marine sergeants — were said to be "in good health and strong spirits." They were resting in a military hospital at the Rhein-Main base near Frankfurt.

The news conference turned out to be an emotional, tear-filled reunion for the male and female hostages, who had been kept apart during their 16-day captivity.

The six black men entered first, followed a minute later by the women, who rushed to the men and kissed them under the glare of television lights and as a revolutionary song praising Khomeini echoed through the room.

Terry Tedford, an embassy secretary, cried openly and the other three women appeared to be on the the point of bursting into tears.

The student leaders cut the emotional encounter and began reading an English translation of Khomeini's order to the students to release the "oppressed blacks" and show "Islamic mercy" to the women.

As the hostages stood shivering in the 40 degree temperature, five students in the crowd got up, took off their jackets and gave them to the four girls and one of the male hostages, Westley Williams.

Robinson said he understood that none of the 49 hostages who would remain behind were to be tried or harmed. At that point, an Iranian woman got up and read Khomeini's remarks affirming those accused of spying would face Islamic trial and Islamic justice.

U.N. Secretary General Kurt Waldheim echoed Carter's concern and said any spy trial "would be a violation of the Vienna convention on the protection of diplomats and diplomatic immunity."

The three hostages freed early Monday left Tehran aboard an SAS commercial flight, which landed at Copenhagen at 5:15 a.m. EST. They then transferred to a U.S. Air Force plane that took them to the Rhein-Main Air Base, where they evaded reporters by entering the military hospital through a back door.

Khomeini's office in Qom Monday launched a surprise attack at the PLO and denied a claim by its Tehran representative that PLO mediation led to the selective release of hostages.

Hani al Hassan, PLO chief in Tehran, said in an interview published by the Bamdad newspaper, "We are happy that the Imam (Khomeini) has accepted our proposal and freed the oppressed blacks, women and non-Americans."

Cilek said. Among the accomplishments of the system are a fire protection service that has led to reduced fire insurance rates, an updated water system, and the ability to function with less administration than cities of the same size, he said.

"I think one of the major concerns is fiscal, and it's been demonstrated since 1949, we've been able to keep this city in a position where it's been able to pay its bills," committee member Mike Gray said.

Several unanswered questions about how an elected mayor system would initially function in Twin Falls also concern Gray.

"If the people of the community want a mayor form of government, that's fine. But I think a majority of voters would like to know what a mayor is going to be paid, what his duties are going to be. There's nothing I can see in the code that provides clearly what those answers would be," he said. "How many capable people would run to give the voters alternatives, and how can a candidate run for mayor if he doesn't know what the job entails? There's a lot of unanswered questions."

That's not to say the elected mayor system is unworkable, Gray said.

"If it does change, this is a resourceful community and we'll just have to pull together and make it work. But I think people should study the issue and register and should vote. I would feel better knowing as many voters as possible vote. It's a very important issue."

Cilek said the committee plans to raise about $1,500 to spend on a campaign in the closing days before the Nov. 27 election. Most donations so far have been small, he said.

A mass mailing to registered voters is planned, he said, and, depending on the resources available, the committee may also advertise.

Publication sees worse fuel crisis

By United Press International

Iran's refusal to sell oil to U.S. companies could produce worse gasoline shortages by January than the United States experienced during the gas crisis last spring, an authoritative petroleum newsletter said Monday.

The independent Lundberg Letter also predicted retail prices for gasoline and other petroleum products would "rise considerably" and may rival the 35 cent-a-gallon jump in U.S. pump prices that has occurred so far this year.

"A boycott of direct imports as enunciated by President Carter permits oil companies to buy Iranian oil and shuffle it around to minimize any impact on the United States," Lundberg said. The letter, which is published in Los Angeles, specializes in gasoline statistics and oil market analysis.

"An embargo against all U.S. companies involves double the amount of oil and makes shuffling much more difficult, practically assuring that there will be a substantial impact on U.S. supplies," the letter said.

Direct crude imports from Iran amounted to about 500,000 barrels a day, or about 3 percent of total U.S. consumption.

But the Iranian embargo against all U.S. companies involves about 1 million barrels of day of Iranian crude, or 6 percent of daily U.S. oil use, which could reduce gasoline output by 4 to 5 percent, Lundberg said.

Since oil companies are allocating about 11 percent less gasoline this month than they sold in November 1978, U.S. motorists could face a shortage of roughly 15 percent by January when the last Iranian oil shipments reach U.S. shores, it said.

Ted seeks labor support in race

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Edward Kennedy, citing a long-time family relationship with organized labor, Monday wooed AFL-CIO convention delegates by comparing President Carter with William McKinley and Herbert Hoover.

Speaking to several hundred delegates and guests at a reception sponsored by 16 union presidents, Kennedy lashed out at Carter's economic politics and his inability to win congressional victories on major labor legislation.

Kennedy received a rousing ovation, and chants of "we want Kennedy," then spent nearly 20 minutes shaking hands and signing autographs as the group pressed in on him past his Secret Service protectors.

"Workers are being ripped off when wages are being held to 7 percent, while prices are being allowed to rise 13 percent a year," Kennedy said to a loud cheer.

"We cannot afford a passive president," he added, noting close losses that labor suffered on labor-law reform and common situs picketing bills in recent years.

He said the country had eight years of Republican policies during the Nixon and Ford administration and four more during the Carter administration.

Union backs Kennedy

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The United Paperworkers Union endorsed Sen. Edward Kennedy for president Monday, saying his "unrelenting commitment" to the nation's working people had earned the union's support.

The international executive board of the 262,000-member union adopted a resolution backing Kennedy's candidacy for the Democratic nomination.

Put a lid on the injection wells

Gov. John Evans was right the first time. Injection of low-level radioactive waste into the Snake River aquifer is completely unacceptable.

It was with those words that Evans greeted the disclosure last week based on unpublished government reports that billions of gallons of liquid nuclear waste have been discharged into the aquifer over the last 25 years. The dumping was done at the Idaho National Engineering Laboratory site northwest of Idaho Falls, where some dumping continues today.

A 1974 report by the U.S. Geological Survey said tritium and salt have contaminated an area of 12 to 15 square miles of the aquifer, which eventually flows under most of south central Idaho north of the Snake River.

After his first reaction, Evans changed his mind, saying it was possible he could support continued injection into the aquifer. He appointed a task force, which visited the INEL Friday, and the governor is withholding a final decision until the panel makes its report.

After their initial visit, task force members Steven Allred, director of water resources, and Milt Klein, director of health and welfare, said the injection was causing no immediate health hazard. State health and water officials have been following the waste disposal through access to INEL records.

But so far Idahoans have not heard much to justify the injections or to explain why they present no future health hazard. They have heard the following:

- The state does not monitor the soil, air or water around the INEL because of a lack of funds. Gov. Evans says his chief concerns are that lax monitoring would fail to catch a bad accidental dump or the spread of contamination beyond the INEL area, should they occur.
- In 1968 the then Atomic Energy Commission ignored a recommendation by the predecessor of the EPA that the injector well program be curtailed because of potential contamination of the Snake River aquifer.
- The EPA wants to inspect nuclear waste disposal practices at INEL. An EPA official said the fact finding mission could result in the EPA taking action to stop radioactive releases from the INEL or change its practices.
- Sen. Frank Church has called on Energy Secretary Charles Duncan to investigate reports that drinking water at the site contains three times as much tritium as EPA standards.
- The INEL has not applied for a license required by Idaho for injection wells although all federal agencies were ordered to comply with state and local environmental laws more than two years ago.
- The INEL is not subject to state regulation but operates only under a gentlemen's agreement with Idaho, even though much of the work at INEL is done by private contractors.

Past experience has shown Idaho cannot rely with confidence on the federal agencies to police themselves or each other and be responsible to the concerns of the state.

INEL officials have reported accidents at the site in recent years a day and sometimes weeks after the fact.

This immunity from responsibility must change or else Idaho must proceed to take matters into its own hands.

In any case the state should demand a halt to the injection of waste water containing low-level nuclear and other materials until it can be proven that no harm can befall the environment in this or future generations.

Putting a leash on goofy

© Universal Press Syndicate

WASHINGTON — Sen. Ted Stevens, R-Alaska, struck a blow for sanity the other day in the matter of strategic warfare. We haven't seen much sanity in that particular sector lately. He won adoption of an amendment telling the Carter administration, in effect, to reconsider the wisdom of Goofy.

Goofy is the system devised by the Pentagon's sons of Rube Goldberg for concealing the MX missile. It is known as Goofy for the Walt Disney dog of the same name. And it is the nuttiest scheme to come along in the name of national security since the CIA proposed to depilate the beard of Dr. Castro.

Attend. The idea is as follows: An enormous chunk of federally owned land out West would be set aside for construction of the strangest railway known to man. It would consist of perhaps 200 closed loops, or racetracks. Each loop would have 23 shelters located a mile and a half apart. There would thus be 4,600 shelters. Right?

Right. then we would provide 200 freight cars. Each freight car would carry a 20-ton MX missile. Each missile would carry 10 individually targeted warheads. There would thus be 2,000 warheads on 200 missiles aboard 200 freight cars on 200 loops shutting about the 4,600 shelters. Right?

Right. All day and all night, week in and week out, 200 engines would chug around the Goofy track, playing the biggest shell game ever played. The Soviets would go crazy, or so the theory goes, trying to figure out which shelters held the missiles.

What would Goofy cost? No one knows. The Pentagon has drawn up some estimates based upon present and probable costs of construction. The latest guess is $33 billion over a 10-year-period. The stentorian voice of experience cries out: Double that estimate! Annual costs of operation are placed at $400 million. None of this bears much relation to reality.

The Stevens amendment was tacked on to the bill appropriating $670 million in the current fiscal year for planning and developing this pie-eyed proposition. The amendment tells the president to continue developing the MX, but to make no specific commitments to the racetrack scheme. Better and cheaper alternatives may be discovered.

One suggested alternative is to load the missiles aboard STOL (short takeoff and landing) aircraft that could leap into action like doodlebugs at the first hint of a Soviet strike. Another proposal is to put the missiles aboard submarines in the Great Lakes. These vessels would be relatively inexpensive, or so it is said, and besides the crews could take shore leave in Chicago, Duluth and Cheboygan, thus supporting the local tradesmen.

There are better alternatives still. We could begin by rejecting the pending treaty on strategic arms limitation. The treaty has a thousand flaws, but the worst of its flaws is this: It would effectively compel our government to build and to deploy all the launchers permitted under the treaty's terms. No president unilaterally could settle for anything less.

Suppose there was no treaty. Common sense might inform a president that enough is enough, that we already have amassed sufficient nuclear power to devastate the whole world, and that funds for national defense could be expended more sensibly elsewhere. The Soviets, for their part, might well come to the same rational conclusion. No longer impelled to arm up to the "limitations" of a treaty, both powers might substitute prudent judgment for supposed necessity.

The Stevens amendment, seeking reconsideration, is altogether wise. Do we learn from history, or do we repeat its hard lessons? By 1990, when Goofy could be fully deployed, its loops and tracks and shelters will be obsolete. More deadly devices yet will have been invented, and we will see the racetracks, covered by drifting sand, as so many pillboxes, so many Maginot lines.

Company spokesman

© Los Angeles Times Syndicate

WASHINGTON — The most important position in any large corporation is that of company spokesman. He is the person put out front when the corporation is accused of some misdeed or violation of the law. My friend, Prof. Heinrich Applebaum, who teaches a course in corporate spokesmanship at the Stonewall School of Business, let me attend one of his classes the other day.

There were three dummy television cameras in the room to simulate an actual press conference.

Applebaum said, "All right, Bensinger. You will play the spokesman for the Windfall Oil Co. Marx, Rogers and Clurman will be the reporters from the networks. The Department of Energy has just released a report that Windfall has bilked its customers out of $1 billion. Start the questions."

"Mr. Bensinger, the DOE says that you overcharged your customers by $1 billion. What do you say to that?"

Bensinger wet his lips. "It's a dirty, contemptible lie."

Applebaum broke in: "No, Bensinger, a company spokesman must keep his cool under media questioning. Your response should be, 'We don't wish to comment on the matter until we've read the charges.'"

"Yes, sir," Bensinger said.

Applebaum said, "That may not get you off the hook, but it's a good start. Marx, throw a tough question at him."

"Since 1974 you've overcharged the public $5 billion," Marx said. "Do you intend to return any of that money to your customers?"

Bensinger answered, "These are political charges made by a vindictive administration whose one aim is to get a large tax on all oil profits."

"Very good, Bensinger," said Applebaum. "How did you come up with that one?"

"I saw it on the Cronkite show last night."

"Push him hard, Rogers," Applebaum yelled.

"Mr. Bensinger, you took an ad in the newspapers last week explaining that Windfall was only making half a cent on a gallon of gasoline, yet your profits were up by 234 percent. How did you make all the money?"

Bensinger looked puzzled. "I didn't understand the question."

Applebaum yelled, "That's not good enough! The cameras will close in on your face and everyone will know you're lying. Does anyone know what Bensinger should say?"

The class was silent.

Applebaum said, "You should say your gas stations made most of their profits from Coke machines. Also that you raised the cost of going to the washroom from 10 to 15 cents, which is keeping within the price guidelines."

"Will they really buy that one, Professor?"

"They will if you say it with authority. And one more thing, Bensinger, watch what you're doing with your hands. TV cameramen always like to shoot an oil spokesman's hands when he's answering a question. It's a dead giveaway that you're trying to cover something up. Clurman, it's your turn."

"Mr. Bensinger, the people think the oil companies are ripping them off. The report from the DOE seems to confirm this. How can you establish your credibility?"

"You've seen our TV commercials. It's up to the public to decide whether they want to believe Bob Hope or some flunky who works for the government."

"Bravo," said Applebaum. "I'm giving you a B-. I might have given you an A if you weren't perspiring so much. Remember this: A spokesman for a large corporation must never sweat on television."

The professor continued, "All right, class, your assignment for tomorrow is to prepare a statement for the Foul Chemical Co., defending itself against charges by Mike Wallace on '60 Minutes' that it dumped nerve gas into the Central Park Reservoir, which caused everybody in New York City to stop brushing their teeth."

Return to mayor

Editor, Times-News:

Do you pride yourself on your independence when it comes to voting your conscience? How much money would it take to buy your vote?

If you are indignant about that query, take a closer look. You are no doubt a good solid citizen who would never think of pocketing a bribe. But unless you stop, think, listen and study the issues, money will still buy your vote and you won't even get to pocket the change. You will become a victim of an advertising campaign bought with money.

Consider the upcoming election. The citizens who took the time and effort and worked to get the issue on the ballot to give you a choice did so without compensation. They have little money with which to conduct an advertising campaign, but unless I miss my guess you will be subjected to a lopsided advertising blitz by special interests that could "buy" your vote.

A word to the wise: "Study the issue, not the advertising." And don't let anyone scare you into believing that a change to an elected mayor will create an earth-shattering catastrophe. There will still be six councilmen with the mayor breaking a tie vote. City business will continue as usual with the difference being an elective office more responsive to the will of the people. Traditionally appointive offices have been more prone to develop into bureaucracies and masters, rather than servants of the people. Elective offices which become too oppressive can be called to account. A yes vote to return the office of mayor to an elective one puts that accounting back into your hands as a citizen, taxpayer and voter.

Hansen again

Editor, Times-News:

Hurray for George Hansen, Idaho's man in Congress. He's done it again. The Iranian situation has united the American people for the first time in decades. Then, out of the crowd comes Idaho's voice in Congress with a 48-hour ultimatum or President Jimmy Carter will be impeached. I was shocked and embarrassed.

But no one should have been surprised. It was a typical Hansen political publicity stunt. With 53 American lives, world respect, and God forbid, international conflict at stake, intelligent caution must be exercised. Judging from Hansen's record, he wouldn't know about this. All he appears concerned with are his big three: gun control, Panama Canal, and OSHA. Issues settled long ago in most people's minds.

Like them or not, Frank Church, James McClure, and Steve Symms are working hard and taking stands on issues affecting Idaho. The solution to the problems of water rights, wilderness areas, atomic waste, population growth, environmental quality, energy, grazing rights and many more, will determine Idaho's future. Hansen doesn't seem concerned. Must we tolerate a man who peddled his wife across the country to raise money securing his job rather than concentrating on Idaho's interests.

How long can the Republican/Mormon political power structure continue to swallow their pride and re-elect a do-nothing like George Hansen to represent Idaho? Idaho is blessed with bright, intelligent, honest, hardworking and honorable people in both political parties that would make Idaho proud. The Republican Party had some grand statesmen in the past. Please, look for another. Our future depends on it.

Not a place setting but a sense of place

BOSTON — The signs were everywhere. Her aunt was counting seats, calling in chits, and getting moderately hysterical. Her uncle was staying calm and thereby getting into trouble.

The children were figuring out a way they could get to sit together "we promise to be quiet this year" — and the adults were figuring out whether an advance fast would mean that they could eat the stuffing.

Everything was running on schedule, which is to say behind-schedule, which is to say according to family tradition.

The woman liked it. She was a closet traditionalist, and Thanksgiving was her annual coming-out party.

She was perhaps the chief family lobbyist for sameness, had even rooted for turkey which, to be honest, she despised. But there was something about Thanksgiving that was positively atavistic. She felt like a kid or a curator who wanted everything in its place.

She wondered sometimes whether people who live with change, cope with it, even embrace it as hopeful, also long the most for sameness. She wondered why the loving was so often associated with family and with this Thanksgiving, this time when we celebrate bringing in the family as if it were our harvest.

The notion of an unchanging family was, of course, an illusion. She knew that. Her family was not, any more than any other, a frozen entity, a tableau vivante directed by Norman Rockwell.

There had been additions and subtractions accompanied by mournings, separations and celebrations. The women were working now, and the children were growing now, and occasionally one member or another was on lend-lease to another holiday table.

Yet for all that, family means stability.

And not just for her. The people she knew, even those who lived much of the year at great emotional or geographic distances, come home this day — not to a place setting but to a sense of place. They feast on connections and satiate themselves on belonging.

Many of us have willy-nilly traded security for mobility. We pride ourselves on flexibility, and calculate our sense of freedom by the number of choices we have.

Then, too, we are encouraged to constantly reassess the jobs we have, the people we love, the places we live by, the standards of "happiness" and self-fulfillment. If they don't measure up, we are supposed to move on to new houses, new towns, new lovers — as if they were brand names.

But faced with a smorgasbord, we sometimes long for a sit-down meal. Independents get nostaligic for belonging. People wh live as interchangeable subjects in a job, or even a bed, long for uniqueness. They want an assigned role and a permanent title, like mother, father, aunt, cousin.

It seemed to her that one of the most remarkable and even attractive things about families is that they don't choose each other; they just live with each other. Even those who feud acknowledge a bond, and those who argue about everything from politics to sports find a way to share the pain.

No, none of us pick our parents of our cousins from a catalog. We cannot decide who will be our nephew this year or whether to find new children who might better contribute to our sense of self-worth.

Yet, in the end, they are the context in which we live, the given, the harbingers of our history, the people who know us because they knew us when. They own their place by eminent domain, and we give them the priorities of blood.

Communes and communities we have built to last, with almost calculating cautiousness, fail. But the families that grow like Topsy with all the eccentricities of nature, with people who have only each other in common, survive.

It is odd, but in a world that give lip service to the importance of change, we give real service to the people we have known all our lives. In an era when we are supposed to pick carefully, we care most fully about those we haven't picked at all.

In the end, we are closest to those we're stuck with. And maybe that is the oldest tradition of all.

'Old oil' levy cut loses

WASHINGTON (UPI) — In its first major test on the oil windfall profits tax, the Senate Monday defeated a Republican-led effort to reduce by 15 percent the levy on oil produced from wells discovered before 1973.

By a vote of 58-32, the Senate rejected an amendment by Sen. Robert Dole, R-Kan., that would have cut the tax on the "old oil" from the 75 percent rate recommended by the Senate Finance Committee to the 60 percent rate approved by the House last June.

The 75 percent tax rate on old oil is the one area in which the $138 billion committee bill is tougher than the $277 billion House bill. In that category, the committee bill would raise $1.6 billion more than the House measure.

Dole called a 60 percent tax rate adequate. But Sen. John Chafee, R-R.I., noting Republicans generally criticized the House bill as harsh, retorted: "I thought that was about as popular here as the Ayatollah Khomeini."

Sen. John Tower, R-Texas, said the entire windfall profits tax "is a political tax. Why pick on oil companies? Why not put a windfall profits tax on the housing industry?"

Earlier, by a vote of 81 to 4, the Senate went on record as supporting a provision in the committee bill calling for the repeal of the "carry over basis," a controversial system that affects inheritors.

Under it, an inheritor would have to pay taxes on the amount the property had appreciated from the date the deceased purchased it.

The administration strongly opposes its repeal, and President Carter has pledged to veto it if presented to him as separate legislation. For that reason, its advocates decided to try to veto-proof the repealer by attaching it to a bill that has a high administration priority.

As the Senate began work on the windfall tax measure Monday, Budget Committee Chairman Edmund Muskie, D-Maine, said a tougher tax is needed to pay for massive programs for energy, defense, welfare reform and catastrophic health insurance.

Appeals court halts demonstration plan

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A federal appeals court, citing a potential of danger for Americans held in Tehran, Monday quashed efforts by an organization of American and Iranian students to hold a plea-for-peace demonstration in front of the White House.

The students said they were changing their plans.

The court ruled the demonstration planned for today at Lafayette Square, across Pennsylvania Avenue from the White House, might create a dangerous situation for hostages being held at the American Embassy in Tehran.

Frank Jackalone, head of the student organization which planned the demonstration to promote peace between the United States and Iran, said the march will be held at another site yet to be selected.

The three-judge panel of the U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia ruled in favor of the government, which urgently appealed a decision Friday by U.S. District Judge Aubrey Robinson.

Volunteer army concept working

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Army Secretary Clifford Alexander said Monday he is "wholeheartedly committed" to an all-volunteer force despite manpower shortfalls and recruiting malpractice.

Alexander told a Senate Armed Services Committee panel the "overall results have been good" since the creation of an all-volunteer force in 1973.

He said the Army has managed to recruit enough volunteers to come within 2 percent of its authorized strength at the end of each fiscal year since 1974.

"We continue to be wholeheartedly committed to this endeavor," he said.

In remarks at a hearing into recruiting malpractice, Alexander said "the great majority of our recruiters not only are honest but have recruiting records of which the Army is justifiably proud."

"I am confident the Army will act to correct the systemic problems underlying recruiter malpractice," he said.

The Army has uncovered 324 cases of alleged recruiting malpractice so far. One of the most common accusations involves unauthorized coaching for entrance examinations.

Questioned by a subcommittee member, the Army secretary also said he believes both men and women should be conscripted if the draft is ever revived.

But he added quickly: "It is also my strongly held opinion that we should not return to the draft."

Brig. Gen. Donald Connelly, who heads the Army's investigation into the malpractice cases, said 90 per cent of the recruiters "are not committing malpractice."

But under questioning, he acknowledged that Army investigators are having a hard time getting to the bottom of the malpractice allegations.

Home construction strikes skids

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Housing construction fell nearly 8 percent in October, the government reported Monday — a clear signal the Federal Reserve Board's tight credit policy has started putting severe strains on the homebuilding industry.

New housing starts were at an annual rate of 1.76 million units last month, down from the 1.91 million pace of September, the Commerce Department said.

Building permits, which often give an indication of future construction activity, dropped 12.7 percent to an annual rate of 1.55 million units, the report said.

The gloomy news for housing came as the Commerce Department released other new statistics showing Americans' personal income rose by $16.6 billion, or 0.8 percent, last month a slightly faster rise than in the two previous months.

However, consumer spending rose by only $2.7 billion last month, a dramatic drop from the $26.1 billion gain in September and August's $24.5 billion increase.

New housing construction was off by more than 14 percent from a year earlier and builder permits were down by 15.5 percent from October 1978, the Commerce Department said.

Mortgage lending has dried up in some two dozen states, which have usury laws that prohibit lending at rates above 13 percent. Many banks and savings institutions have stopped making loans because it has become unprofitable.

Shah's book postponed

By United Press International

SHAH SHIFT

The book of the month is not going to be the deposed shah of Iran's. Publication of Shah Mohammed Reza Pahlavi's memoirs, scheduled for November, has been delayed. Albin Michel, the French publisher, says he wants to wait until the shah is well enough to do publicity interviews. But other sources told Newsweek magazine that the shah ordered the delay because he doesn't want his criticisms to upset the Carter Administration just now.

MASS MASS

Traditional Irish music usually has limited, though avid, appeal, so it might seem surprising that the Guinness Book of Records has honored The Chieftains for singing to the largest live audience ever — 1,250,000 people in Dublin. That's twice the size of the largest rock festival and three times the largest classical concert. But then The Chieftains had some help — they were performing for Pope John Paul II at his papal mass. Talk about a warm-up act.

SEE THEM NOW

The requirements are steep: 25 years on Broadway and five major show credits. Yet the Theater Hall of Fame found 48 people who qualified, and put their names, if not in lights, in gold on the wall of the Uris Theater Sunday in New York. Among the winners — Leonard Bernstein, David Merrick, Jessica Tandy, Lotte Lenya, Arthur Miller, Lillian Gish, Henry Fonda. The hall has been dark five years, but has an angel now, Max Factor, and the awards will be annual.

INGRID'S INNING

They weren't the kind of films the audience was honoring her for, but Ingrid Bergman's home movies — starting when she was 3 months old — drew applause at Variety Club International's tribute to her Sunday night. Saluting Miss Bergman — in a show taped for television showing Dec. 6 — were such stars as Jimmy Stewart, a past winner, Sammy Davis Jr., Cary Grant, Frank Sinatra and Goldie Hawn. In honor of her honor, the Swedish government gave a medal.

MALE CALL

Arlene Esenga sounds like an FCP female chauvinist you-know-what — but she insists "We don't even miss" men at the Falmouth, Mich., school. For several years, the 115-student school has had a female staff: Mrs. Esenga as principal, five women teachers, one cook, one custodian and two secretaries. "The main thing to remember is that the school is being run by professionals first and women second," she said. Not quite — all five school board members are men.

Pat Nixon home

SAN CLEMENTE, Calif. (UPI) — Pat Nixon walked out of San Clemente Community Hospital Monday in "extremely good spirits" and in time to spend Thanksgiving with her family.

Mrs. Nixon, 68, was hospitalized last Tuesday for bronchial pneumonia.

Triangular custody battles loom in court

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — Two-way custody battles in Pennsylvania may go triangular, now that a judge has ruled that children in divorced families may need attorneys of their own.

In a nine-page decision, Superior Court Judge John P. Hester has authorized lower court judges to appoint attorneys to represent the children in particularly tortured family battles.

"In some custody disputes the children do need someone to advance and protect their interests," the judge ruled.

He said he did not want to require that children have attorneys, however, because "we see a danger of placing the child in a position adversarial to his (or her) natural parents, where no such adversarial atmosphere would be present."

The ruling came in connection with an appeal filed by Marilyn Lewis, 34, of suburban Munhall, who asked the court to order her husband, Richard, to never see their children again.

Instead, the court ordered Mrs. Lewis to allow the children — Richard, 14, and Colleen, 11 — to undergo counseling so they could resume their relationship with their father, who has not seen them since August 1976.

Collegiate tales due on radio

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich. (UPI) — Come with us now to those thrilling days of yesteryear, the radio serial.

"Baxter University" is about to go on the air.

The university is the creation of Jill and Allan McFarlane of Leland, Mich., who have produced 65 two-and-a-half minute shows to be aired on 30 stations around the country beginning Jan. 1.

"In my house, growing up, we'd all sit around and watch the radio," said McFarlane, a Yale University graduate who abandoned a career in banking and investments nine years ago.

"You had to think to follow the story. Radio was my first exposure to outside intelligence other than my teacher at school."

The couple is now writing the show in May and are producing it with area talent, despite an offer of backing from Dick Orkin of Chicken Man and Time magazine commercial fame.

Baxter is a tuition-free university which awards only one degree — 101.6. The school was founded in 1913 by Horace Schmedlott, who made billions in diamonds and wanted to get back at Ivy League snobbery. The school colors are beige and blue.

Faculty members are selected in the same way as baseball players eligible for the free agent draft.

McFarlane bases some of his scripts on current events, such as the episode of BU's jogging pig squad.

He said he read about an experiment in which a scientist was using pigs to test his theories on the effects of jogging on humans.

"Now my question is, 'What happens to those pigs when those experiments are over?'" McFarlane said. "Well, BU Athletic Director Rip Ralston recruits them, of course. However, he's not happy with the results and accuses the team of pigging out at the training table."

Hot pepper mark goes to plumber

PAMPA, Texas (UPI) — A 29-year-old plumber ate 100 hot jalapeno peppers in less than 15 minutes Sunday to gain a world record and a giant stomachache.

"I'm burning up," said Ronnie Farmer, after finishing his feat of eating the 100 peppers in 14 minutes, 19 seconds.

"It's hurting but I think I'll make it," he said. "My whole body is quivering. I've got the shakes — I'm burning up and it feels like a small campfire in my belly."

Farmer's feat was performed before an appreciative audience of 75 and was recorded by television cameras.

It was his second attempt at breaking the world record. His unsuccessful previous attempt was made last March in Midland, Texas.

Wyoming sheep ranchers demand Carter fire Andrus

CASPER, Wyo. (UPI) — A group of Wyoming ranchers has called on President Carter to fire Interior Secretary Cecil Andrus, claiming he has failed to implement the Animal Damage Control Act of 1931 and has been capricious in formulating federal policy.

The Wyoming Wool Growers Association also said it intends to press legal action against the Department of Interior, either alone or in conjunction with other groups.

The action came during the association's annual state convention in Casper, where the group also passed a resolution supporting state legislative and congressional attempts to make the so-called sagebrush rebellion a reality.

The movement hopes to return federally managed public lands to the control of western state governments.

The association also adopted a resolution concerning water rights in Wyoming. It said adequate funding should be provided by the state Legislature to enforce currently existing laws governing the plugging of exploration holes.

The association said ranchers are concerned about the loss of both quantity and quality of ground water to the exploration holes.

Land use and grazing allotments were also taken up during the convention, and the WWGA unanimously adopted resolutions in both areas.

Grazing allotments are a sore point for many wool growers, who depend on federally managed public lands for much of their range. The resolution approved Saturday supports a bill currently in the Senate which would limit grazing allotment reductions to no more than 10 percent in one year and no more than 20 percent over a 10-year period.

The association also said all public lands should be subject to multiple use provisions. The group's resolution said federal land removed from multiple use to a wilderness area designation is likely to be land that is part of some rancher's grazing allotment.

LDS leader improving, doctors say

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI) — Doctors said Monday they would move Mormon Church President Spencer W. Kimball from LDS Hospital's intensive care unit to a regular room, and that he would remain hospitalized for another 10-12 days.

Church spokesman Charlie Gibbs said Kimball would be transfered out of the intensive care unit by midafternoon. Doctors decided the Mormon patriarch was recovering well enough from surgery to reduce a swelling between his brain and skull that intensive care would no longer necessary, Gibbs said.

The 84-year-old spritual leader of the world's 4.2 million Mormons was listed in "stable" condition.

Hawaii strike continues

HONOLULU (UPI) — The United Public Workers Union caused minor disruptions at the Honolulu dockfront again Monday, as a statewide strike by 7,700 maintenance, custodial and cafeteria workers entered its fifth week.

Hawaii docks were shut down by UPW pickets Oct. 23 for one day, when members of the ILWU refused to cross the picket lines. The picket lines later moved to noncritical harbor areas.

Monday's show of pickets was a repeat of Friday's action, when the strikers appeared before dawn, but withdrew when union negotiations with the state and county governments were about to resume.

All but 15 of Hawaii's public schools were back in session Monday, depending on parent volunteers in the absence of the UPW custodians to keep them in compliance with state health regulations.

The schools were closed Oct. 26, the fifth day of the strike. A selective reopening began last Thursday.

Transit woes persist

OAKLAND (UPI) —, A proposed contract with a reduced cost-of-living clause has failed to end a dispute that has left 1,700 Bay Area Rapid Transit District employees without their jobs and riders with only limited service.

Members of two unions voted on the pact Sunday, but it was ratified by only one. A prior agreement said both unions would have to approve the contract before it went into effect.

The major issue was a cost-of-living clause which the unions sought to maintain in their new contracts. The proposed pact, worked out after week-long talks, contained a watered-down version.

The Amalgamated Transit Union Division 1555 voted 268-169 to accept the pact while United Public Employees Local 390 voted 322-317 against it.

The executive committees of both unions were to meet Monday to determine their next move. There have not been any pickets since the start of the dispute.

BART suspended all service on Aug. 31 because of alleged sabotage by maintenance workers. The rank-and-file had agreed to remain on the job pending further negotiations.

Pisceans should plan to expand endeavors, avoid upsets, relax

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Double check your judgment early in the day and make sure it is correct. Find new ways that can increase your income in the future. Study whatever has been puzzling you in the past.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Be sure you have correct data before making any important decisions today. Be alert to new opportunities now present.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Your mate is cooperative so make the most of this now. Your intuition will improve as the day gets longer.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Use caution in whatever you do early in the day, but later all goes smoothly and you can throw caution to the winds.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Be sure your activities are well scheduled before you start working. Strive for more harmony with family members.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Be sure to handle difficult work early in the day so you will have more time for social activities later in the day.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Study new interests that could be profitable in the future. Make sure you invest money wisely and well. Be more cheerful.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Contact higher-ups who can give the support you need at this time. The evening is fine for social pleasure with congenials.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Don't take any chances with money in the morning or you could regret it later. Don't let an outsider take advantage of you.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Morning is not the time to go after personal goals, but the rest of the day is fine. Friends can bring you pleasure in the evening.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Concentrate on how best to solve problems that have been puzzling to you in the past. Health treatments can be helpful to you.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Ideal day for seeing as many persons as you can, either for business or personal reasons. Show that you have wisdom.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Plan how to expand in your line of endeavor. Be sure not to let an opponent upset you in any way. Relax in the evening.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY . . . he or she will be able to comprehend anything having large scope to it, be projects or philosophies. There could be fame and wealth in this chart. Teach good manners and give good religious training early in life.

What's what

Formula for marriages sounds somewhat amiss

Matrimonial experts have analyzed the ages of men and women at the times of their first marriages and compared these statistics with the numbers of eligible men and women in the population. And they concluded the most practical marriages from a statistical standpoint would occur when men married women who are twice the ages minus seven years of those men. Ideally then, a 25-year-old man would do best to marry a 43-year-old woman. A 30-year-old man should match up with a 53-year-old woman. And a 40-year-old man should go to the altar with a 73-year-old woman. Our Love and War man is unconvinced.

Many who've heard about King Arthur and his Knights of the Round Table don't realize there was significance in the fact that the table was round. Because of its shape, all the knights who sat at it were shown to be equal.

Among 10-year-old girls, the name Jennifer outnumbers any other nationwide. Among the 10-year-old boys, it's Michael.

RESTAURANTS

Q. What town in this country has the most restaurants for its population?

A. Ft. Lauderdale, Fla. With 2,800 eateries for 166,000 people.

If that ice cream is really the best, it's about 25 percent air.

Q. How often does the average American change residences over a lifetime?

A. About 14 times.

Q. Is a zebra dark with white stripes or white with dark stripes?

A. White with dark stripes.

PLANET

Did I say an active volcano exists on Jupiter's planet No. 10? That planet is called Io, pronounced eye-oh, named in honor of a mortal wench with whom the mythological god Jupiter supposedly fell in love.

Among the earliest of breakfast cereals was a familiar dish served up by the American colonists: popcorn with cream and honey on it.

Doctor's complaints aired

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN
© Chicago Tribune-New York News Syndicate, Inc.

DEAR ABBY: I'm a little tired of all those letters from patients who complain because they have to wait to see their doctors. Please be fair and print the reasons why doctors run late.

Mrs. A. rushes in, hysterical, without an appointment, because she just noticed a lump in her breast. I examine her, then she asks if I would mind taking her husband's blood pressure since he came with her.

After Mr. J. has had his annual physical, he asks if I would mind writing out new prescriptions for his visiting aunt from the East who ran out of all nine of her medications — two months ago. And do I think the blotchy rash on her hands could be contagious? Since she arrived, everyone itches.

Mrs. B. (the "emergency" call, whose daughter had to be seen IMMEDIATELY) finally arrives. The emergency? The daughter is 24 pounds overweight, her wedding is two weeks off and the dress won't fit. "Aren't there water pills or something she can take?"

Meanwhile, the hospital is on the phone again. The coronary isn't doing well, the diabetic came out of the coma and insists on being discharged immediately, and the record room wants to complete my charts before the staff meeting at 3 p.m.

Oh, yes, and that doctor on the phone with another doctor discussing the business deal that sounds like a tax shelter: He NEEDS that deal. It will help him survive until some patients who were treated last year get around to paying their bills.

Most people go through the ordeal of seeing their physicians only once or twice a year; their doctors see 35 or more patients daily. Sometimes I think the wrong people are being treated.

— COMPTON, CALIF., M.D.

DEAR ABBY: My husband, who works for an airline, has told me some unbelievable tales about some of the stuff they find at the airport in boxes, parcels and suitcases that can't be returned to their owners because they are totally without identification!

Abby, luggage containing expensive jewelry and cash ($1,000 or more) is somehow lost at the airport.

Please tell your readers to put their names and addresses INSIDE their luggage as well as outside. Sometimes identification tags attached to the handles fall off.

— MEG IN ST. PAUL

DEAR MEG: Thanks for the timely tip. Holiday travelers, take note.

DEAR ABBY: In your reply to CHICKEN IN DETROIT, the woman whose "super-dude" had bad breath, you said, "If a dentist can't help him, he should see a doctor."

Abby, I resent the implication that a dentist is not a doctor. My husband is a DDS, which stands for "doctor of dental surgery," and he has as much right to call himself "doctor" as do physicians.

I think you owe dentists an apology.

— WIFE OF A DDS

DEAR WIFE: I apologize. I might need a doctor of dental surgery to get my foot out of my mouth!

Festival of trees set

BURLEY — The second annual "Festival of Trees" will be held Nov. 30 and Dec. 1 at the Ponderosa Inn of Burley, sponsored by the Cassia Health Care Foundation Inc., and will offer something special for each member of the family.

Prior to the opening of the festival to the public a brunch will be held for those who have furnished and donated decorated trees. Former Miss Idaho Terri Harding Harmon, Miss Mini-Cassia Leslie Taylor and Ralph Wadsworth will entertain at the brunch.

Diane Woodhouse, General Chairman, announced that the festival will be open to the public at noon on Nov. 30 and at 10 a.m. Dec. 1. The doors will close each night at 10 p.m. and that special talent will be performing continuously each half hour throughout the festival.

Others serving on the festival committee include June Tilley and Connie Geary, entertainment; Frances Tanny McDonald, finance; Patty Hilliard, hostesses and Mabelle Pierce, publicity.

A poster contest for local high schools was held under the direction of Pat Searle, a member of the Health Care Foundation. Lisa Atchley, a Burley High School student submitted the winning poster and was presented a check by Frank Hamm, president of the foundation.

Many businesses, organizations and individuals have signed with the CHCF committee to decorate and place on display a Christmas tree to be sold at the festival. The committee has set the goal for 60 trees. When these are sold they will be tax deductable as a donation for both the donor and buyer and will be bagged and delivered by the Health Care Foundation to the purchaser.

The Cassia Memorial Pink Ladies Auxiliary under the direction of their president, Pat Adams, will again feature their Country Store with bazaar items and their Sweet Shop with all sorts of homemade goodies and lunches for sale.

Tickets will be $1.00 per adult and 50 cents per child.

Profile of 'baby of family'

By ERMA BOMBECK

© FIELD ENTERPRISES, INC.

Everyone talks about the "baby" of the family, but no one ever does anything about him.

Is he the "favorite" of his mother? The last hurrah of his father? The indulged brat? The babysitter for Mom and Dad? It all depends on who you talk to.

I've gotten together a profile of "the baby" of the family as seen through the eyes of its members.

According to his older brothers and sisters, the "baby" is spoiled, indulged, and raised without rules. He got the digital watch when he was four, a car when he was 12, an allowance usually reserved for heirs to the British throne, and got to sit in the white living room before he was 18.

He has never known curfews, what it means to share a bedroom, handprints on his backside, chores, hand-me-downs, or heard the expression, "Clean up your plate." By the time he was born the family had a full set of encyclopedias, a riding mower, two TV sets, big bucks to send him to a college someone had heard of, and he was encouraged not to work as it interfered with his grades.

Father views the "baby" of the family as his last shot at being a father . . . a pal-to take fishing, go to football games with, and even violate the siding on the garage by mounting a basketball hoop on it.

When this one is launched it's goodbye tuition, hello St. Thomas . . . goodbye car insurance premiums, hello sailboat. He's at the end of the line and somehow it doesn't seem very important that the kid borrowed his gasoline charge card when he was a sophomore and hasn't returned it since.

A mother's view of the "baby" is she's losing ground on what she does best. Mothering. That is why when the "baby" is 56, has a stomach that hangs over his belt, and a hairline shaped like the map of the Florida Keys, he will still be her "baby." What she used to hit, smack and put the others in their room for she now laughs at, ignores, or says, "You're such a tease."

Whether from guilt or the luxury of more time she wants to rap about how he feels about life. She's more relaxed, has fewer pressures and figures, "What the heck, when this one is gone, I'll clean the house."

The "baby" has an entirely different approach to his status. He regards his position as a bummer. Abandoned by the good times, he is stuck with older parents in a quiet house and a refrigerator that holds only low fat milk, yogurt and honey wheat bread without calories or preservatives. He has the pressures of an only child, but the pain of an empty baby book.

The "baby" will be with us forever, but look at it this way. It's a dirty job, and someone has to do it.

Irregular gains on stock market

NEW YORK (UPI) — The stock market, battered by some bad news from Iran, the government in Washington and the nation's banks, managed to register an irregular gain Monday in moderate trading.

The Dow Jones industrial average, up about 3 points at midafternoon, lost 0.43 point to 815.27. The Dow was operating with a handicap of 0.77 point because two of its member stocks were trading minus their dividends. A 5.63-point loser Friday, the Dow nevertheless gained 9.22 points overall last week.

The New York Stock Exchange index rose 0.25 to 59.36 and the price of a share gained 14 cents. Advances topped declines, 797 to 659, among the 1,882 issues traded at 4 p.m. EST.

The market has tried sustain a rally following the October Massacre in which the Dow average fell about 100 points. But investors are restrained by record interest rates.

Big Board volume totaled 33,090,000 shares, compared with 30,060,000 traded Friday.

Composite volume of NYSE issues listed on all U.S. exchanges and over the counter at 4 p.m. totaled 32,993,400 shares, compared with 33,453,388 Friday.

The American Stock Exchange index rose 2.14 to 220.20 and the price of a share added 15 cents. The National Association of Securities Dealers' NASDAQ composite OTC index gained 0.91 to 139.98.

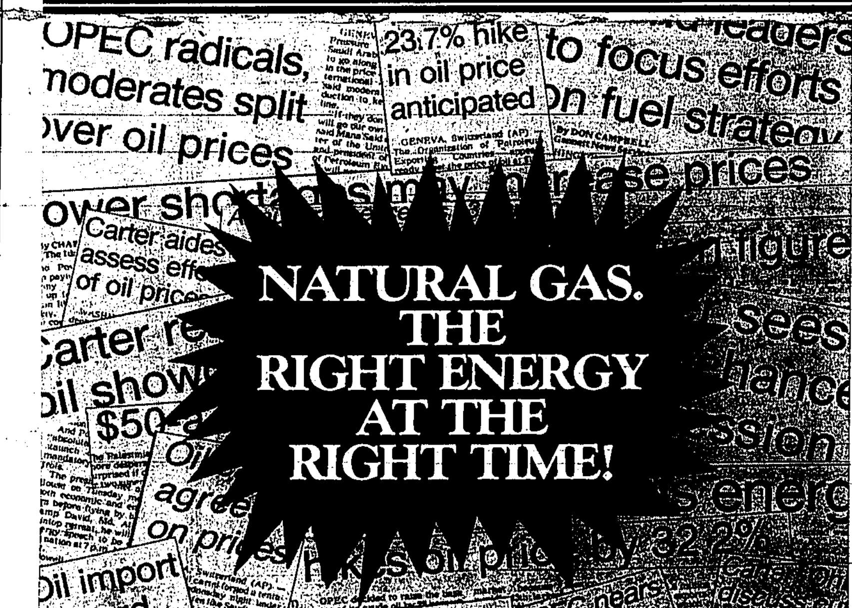
Intermountain Gas Company



What form of energy should you choose to heat your home? Oil, electricity or natural gas? The cost and availability of oil is unpredictable. Electric supplies are tight now and demand is growing. That's why natural gas is the right energy for you. Long-term supplies are excellent. It's the most efficient way to heat your home. And both the Department of Energy and the Idaho Public Utilities Commission recommend the use of natural gas for space heating over oil and electricity. Think about it.

Natural Gas: The right energy at the right time.

Grain futures

CHICAGO (UPI) — Wheat and soybeans were substantially lower and corn and oats mixed at the close Monday on the Chicago Board of Trade.

Wheat was off 3 to 5 cents; corn off ½ to up 2½; oats off ¼ to up ¼, and soybeans off 4 to 8½ cents.

Trading was interrupted today because the computer price reporting system stopped operating around 11:30 a.m. and remained broken down for the rest of the day. Emergency rules were enacted and price recording was manual. The markets were closed individually in the afternoon.

Overnight country movement had a negative effect on the corn market, but there also was support for corn in exporter pricing. There was hedge pressure on corn, and possibly soybean, futures. The soybean complex showed some crush-spreading and was pressured downward. Wheat futures were influenced by the other markets and by technical influences.

The outside markets were mostly lower.

The Person-to-Person Tailored Loan.
It solves a financial problem without creating another one.

Problem:
Let's say you want to buy a camper. The price is right, so you think about getting a loan. But repaying a loan around the holidays isn't so easy. Or maybe making payments during the summer wouldn't leave you enough money for vacation. What do you do?

Solution:
Skip up to 3 consecutive payments every year. With a Tailored Loan from Person-to-Person Financial Center.

Problem:
Some of your furniture has seen better days. And you could use a few other things around the house. You'd like to borrow the money, but with the two kids in school you could use some extra time to pay it back.

Solution:
Take more than 4 years to repay. With a Tailored Loan from Person-to-Person Financial Center.

Problem:
You need a vacation. Badly. You just don't have enough money to pay for it. A loan is the answer. Only you need the vacation now and you aren't due for a raise for 4 months.

Solution:
Delay the first payment up to 6 months. With a Tailored Loan from Person-to-Person Financial Center.

South Park residents fight migrant housing

By MARTY TRILLHAASE
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Nearly 70 South Park area residents jammed the Twin Falls City Council chambers Monday to protest a proposed 24-unit migrant housing project.

The project, proposed by the Idaho Migrant Council, would offer low-cost housing to persons deriving at least 50 percent of their income from seasonal farm labor.

The project, to be built on land purchased by the IMC between Gardner Avenue, Highland Avenue and Illinois Street, is being funded by the Farmers Home Administration.

The IMC is requesting a zone change from R-6A to R-6 PUD. The Twin Falls Planning and Zoning Commission last month recommended approval.

After 90 minutes of debate, the Council deferred taking action on the proposal.

The Council also heard arguments Monday on the city's proposed comprehensive plan and area of impact and also deferred action on those issues.

IMC Deputy Director Ed Mair of Boise said several surveys over the past two years indicated such housing was lacking in the Twin Falls area. "We feel that 24 units in our program will only begin to meet that need," he said.

But area residents expressed concern over the project's impact on a seepage related flooding problem in the area, on the area's sewage system, and on property values.

"We feel that the project should be stopped until the health and welfare of the residents of South Park is considered more thoroughly," Joe Powlus of Twin Falls said. Sewage facilities in the area are inadequate now and will not support the additional facilities, he added.

Powlus added the project is not needed and a survey showing such a need does not accurately reflect the number of migrants in the area.

In a statement delivered by assistant Darlene Ovey, Rep. Tom Stivers, R-Twin Falls, also took issue with the IMC survey. Stivers noted the survey was conducted two years ago. He added it may not longer be accurate, considering the Twin Falls labor camp did not reach beyond 65 percent capacity this year.

Stivers recommended a separate survey by an impartial body.

Despite the objections, the city can not prevent completion of the project, Mayor Leon Smith noted. The issue is whether to establish a PUD zone. Under the present zoning, the IMC can build up to 46 units on the property. The IMC has applied for PUD zoning in order to build 24 units, but in a higher density, than standard zoning allows. Under PUD status, the Council would be able to review the building plans.

In a separate public hearing, compensation for affected property owners in the proposed of area of impact was urged.

Twin Falls attorney Lloyd Webb told the council restrictions imposed on property owners in the airport zone would amount to the city assuming certain property rights. Under two 1960's Idaho Supreme Court rulings, compensation is required when such restrictions are imposed, Webb said.

"I'm sure the council is aware that the only relief farmers have been able to seek in the last few years is not in their income but in the inflation in their land," Webb said.

On the city's proposed area of impact, several residents urged the Council not to approve professional office buildings along the north side of Addison Avenue. Such action would amount to commercial encroachment in the older residential areas, Twin Falls attorney Walt Sinclair said.

"They're slowly degrading the older part of town," Sinclair said. "I don't consider my office any less commercial than a 7-11 store."

Idaho lifestyle called conducive to skin cancer

By IRENE LINK
Times-News writer

Many who live here would agree that the Magic Valley has an almost perfect climate.

The generally sunny, dry weather is ideal for farming and outdoor recreation.

Unfortunately, those weather conditions are also ideal for some not-so-desirable skin problems: skin cancers and excessively dry skin.

According to Dr. Thad Scholes, the only dermatologist in southcentral Idaho, there is a higher incidence of skin cancers and pre-cancerous conditions here than in most other parts of the United States.

That fact is due in part to the large percentage of farmers in the Magic Valley and the vast number of people who spend most of their spare time in outdoor activities, two of the leading reasons people choose to live here.

Dr. Scholes grew up in Twin Falls and knows the climate well. After practicing general medicine for over three years, he decided to return to school to specialize in dermatology with plans to practice his specialty here, which he has done since receiving his degree from the Cleveland Clinic in 1973.

During the past six years, he has seen numerous cases of pre-cancerous skin lesions and skin cancers.

According to Scholes, "Every fair-haired farmer who has farmed for 20 years or more in this area has some kind of pre-cancerous skin lesion, if not a developing skin cancer."

The skin cancers Dr. Scholes regularly sees are the result of many years of exposure to the sun and its destructive ultraviolet rays, although skin cancers can also be caused by working with coal tar, arsenic compounds, pitch, paraffin oil or radium.

Most of the skin cancers Dr. Scholes refers to are found on the face, neck, ears, and back of the hands of farmers and other outdoors people. The ease with which these particular areas sunburn indicate how readily they are affected by how much sun. They are the parts of the body most frequently left uncovered out-of-doors.

It is estimated that 300,000 new skin cancers hit Americans each year and that the majority of these are the result of exposure to the sun. Some 5,300 people die yearly from skin cancer.

About 35 percent of all skin cancers occur in the intermediate layer of the epidermis. These are very dangerous in that they can spread to distant organs of the body. Sixty percent of all skin cancers occur in the lowest layer of the epidermis. They grow more slowly and almost never spread to other organs. However, they do spread on the surface and can gnaw through bone, destroy a nose, eye, or ear and drastically deform facial features.

According to Dr. Scholes, "Light-complexioned people with blue eyes run the highest risk because their skin has less melanin, the pigment which filters out the ultraviolet rays of the sun. Risk lessens with darker skins. But anyone who spends a good deal of time in the sun is prone to the disease."

"A skin cancer usually has a waxy, pearly look; but sometimes it is red and scaly. It is almost never painful. It doesn't itch. Because it is most often symptomless, it can go undetected or ignored."

What can Magic Valley people do if they suspect they might have or be developing a skin cancer? Dr. Scholes says, "It is a good idea for farmers to have a yearly exam to check for pre-cancerous lesions and skin cancers; so they can be treated immediately before they have a chance to become major problems."

About 95 percent of all skin cancers can be treated in a doctor's office. The most widely used technique is electrosurgery, in which an electric needle destroys the malignant tissues by heat. Another is cryosurgery, in which the cancer is frozen to death. Then there is chemosurgery, in which a powerful chemical is used to cut out the cancer. Some cancers must be removed with a surgical scalpel.

After treatment, a protective face cream with the all-important ingredient of PABA (para-amino-benzoic acid) should be used daily. PABA screens out deadly ultraviolet rays and permits a gradual tanning. It can also protect against rapid degeneration of the skin.

Dry skin is also the result of our climate and lifestyles. Dr. Scholes cites several main reasons for the dry skin problem. "First, we have the overexposure to the sun and its damaging effects. Secondly, the Magic Valley has its infamous strong, dry wind. Another major factor is that during the cold weather we are stuck in houses and offices with very low humidity."

Following the precept of 'cleanliness is next to Godliness,' we tend to overbathe, stripping the body of what little moisture, oils, and protection it may have left. And finally, we do not protect our skin enough or aid the skin in replacing moisture.

Extremely dry skin develops more and deeper wrinkles, causing the skin to look older. Dry skin is more sensitive to everything in its environment. It may become itchy. It can develop exemas and other irritations.

"It is never too late to begin protecting your skin," Dr. Scholes states. "In extreme cases of dry, damaged skin, the only recourse may be a face lift or other corrective plastic surgery. However, most of us can begin important measures now to preserve and guard against further damage.

"One primary rule is to use a sunscreen with PABA each time you are outdoors, not just when you think you might sunburn. The other important rule is to replace the moisture to your skin that is constantly being taken away by low humidity indoors and out, high winds, and sun exposure."

Dr. Scholes maintains that expensive creams and lotions do not do any more good than inexpensive preparations. "The key ingredients to look for in a moisturizing cream or lotion are glycerine, propalene glycol, and lanoline. A combination of all three seems to be even better. Other ingredients listed in skin preparations are usually non-essential, like perfumes, colorings, and preservatives, Scholes said.

He added that the cosmetic industry in this country is perpetrating a giant "ripoff."

"Vitamins (such as A, D, and E), Collagen, protein, and hormones added to moisturizers and cosmetics do absolutely no good. You can rub these on your face until hell freezes over and they won't do any good. They can't work because they cannot sink in deep enough to actually have a therapeutic effect.

"The important thing is to buy creams and lotions with the essential ingredients because these are the components that help hold moisture in your skin. Moisture keeps the skin plump and prevents the dryness that is so damaging. It is also important to apply these preparations frequently during the day to wet or damp skin so they can trap in the moisture. Vaseline and Crisco have been known to do this as well as more expensive preparations."

Dr. Scholes says that since we bathe rather regularly, it is vital to use a mild, non-detergent soap. Some very recent studies have shown Dove to be less damaging to the skin than other common soaps offered in the super-market.

With a few simple precautions and very little expense (especially if you choose Crisco for your face cream), most of us can prevent skin cancer, avoid dry skin, and fend off premature wrinkling and aging of the skin.

Sheep easement granted

By SUSAN McBRYANT
Times-News writer

SUN VALLEY — The Sun Valley City Council approved the controversial Jim Day subdivision Monday after the developers agreed to provide a corridor for sheep herding.

In approving the revised plat, the Council ignored the protests of area residents who opposed the development because it will be built on prime elk grazing range without provision for preservation of habitat for the elk.

The original plat was changed after the Flat Top Sheep Co. sued the developers to obtain a livestock easement through the development.

Attorney Jim Phillips said rancher John Peavey had the right to that easement due to his previous use of the land.

The Elkhorn developers met with Peavey and Phillips last weekend and agreed to alter the boundaries of eight lots in such a way as to provide a corridor for livestock and open space. The corridor varies in width from one-half mile to 50 feet.

Although Peavey would have preferred more room for his sheep, he said his proposal would deprive the development company of $1.5 million of salable land and would not have stood up in court without just compensation to the developer.

Phillips said the suit will now be withdrawn.

A final plea was made by Fish and Game officer Ted Chu to consider the plight of the roughly 55 elk which graze in the June Day area. He pointed out the repeated efforts the Fish and Game department has made to encourage Sun Valley to consider wildlife preservation.

Chu said that while the newly proposed corridor of open space may be sufficient for sheep, it is woefully inadequate for the preservation of the elk. He said he would prefer to see the elimination of 28 proposed lots with denser clustering of residences in the lower area of the development.

Karen Larson of Ketchum questioned the legality of action taken on the subdivision proposal by the Sun Valley Planning and Zoning Commission, which initially approved the project.

She claimed that two members are not legally in compliance with city ordinances because they live outside the city. She said Sun Valley should reappoint a legal commission to reconsider the June Day development.

Larson further pointed out that a petition of 800 signatures protesting the development because of the elk had been presented in initial planning stages and was ignored by the Commission.

The city currently is studying the legality of the situation.

Sniffing paint

BURLEY — Michael Herrea, 18, of Burley, was arrested Sunday and charged with contributing to the delinquency of a minor.

Herrea was discovered sniffing paint in his car parked at North Park about 7 p.m. He was accompanied by a male minor. The juvenile was referred to the Rupert Juvenile Conference Committee.

Attempted rape

RUPERT — Rupert police said Monday they are investigating an attempted rape which occurred in the southeast section of the city Saturday night.

The assailant forced entry into a locked home, the police said. No arrests have been made.

Heroin

RUPERT — Two Rupert men have been arrested and charged with delivery of a controlled substance as a result of separate incidents last spring.

David Allen Dwight, 24, allegedly sold heroin to a narcotics agent about March 17. Clyde Harvey Dwight, 30, allegedly did the same on about May 17. Both men were placed on $10,000 bond in Magistrate Court Nov. 16; the bond on David Dwight was reduced to $5,000 Monday.

CSI geothermal well drilling ends at 2,200 feet

By BEN McKELWAY
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The College of Southern Idaho has stopped drilling its geothermal well at a depth of 2,264 feet.

The water, 102 degrees Fahrenheit at the top of the well, is hot enough to heat the campus, CSI President James Taylor told the college's Board of Trustees at its monthly meeting Monday. The well's flow is 1,200,000 gallons per day, he said.

"Now we need to get our retrofitting funds, and we'll energize this campus," Taylor said.

Taylor had hoped for hotter water, but the drilling equipment went as deep as its capacity allowed, Taylor said. The drill never broke through a thick layer of red rhyolite, under which college officials had expected the water temperature to rise.

The college will now apply for a grant from the federal Department of Energy to convert the heating systems of most campus buildings to geothermal heat.

Because of the high cost of conversion at the college dormitory, that building may not be switched to geothermal heat, Taylor said.

The water at the bottom of the well is 117 degrees, Taylor said. The well is cased to prevent leakage of cooler water into the shaft.

In other business, Taylor told the board he is seriously considering limiting the use of campus buildings by groups not associated with the college, chiefly because the crowds are using so much toilet paper and hand towels.

Because of the 1 percent initiative, Taylor said, the college cannot afford such expense, adding that the price of paper products has risen by 365 percent over the last two years. He also cited extra maintenance and custodial costs associated with hosting conventions, concerts, rodeos, and other such events. He did not propose specific action, however.

"I just wanted to put out to the board that that is an area that bothers me a bit," Taylor said. "I'm working on it, trying to find some alternatives."

The board also learned that the fascia (the outer edge of the cornice) on one of the classroom buildings has slipped in one spot but will be fixed free of charge by the contractors responsible, according to CSI attorney Robert Alexander.

Alexander said the slippage was discovered at one corner of the Shields Building last week and contractors Lloyd Miller and Craig Neilsen responded immediately to a letter from Alexander. Partners when the building was completed in 1968, they both promised to rehang the cement slabs as soon as possible, Alexander said.

"That's a nice thing to have happen," Alexander said. "You dont see that a lot."

He said he thought the fascia used did not quite fit the architectural drawings and was improperly attached to the eaves of the building. Only one 1,500-pound slab has slipped about one inch, Alexander said, but two others are unstable.

Taylor said the correction should be completed later this week.

Use of two herbicides ruled out in northern Idaho national forests

COEUR D'ALENE, Idaho (UPI) — The herbicides 2,4,5-T and Silvex will not be sprayed in the national forests of north Idaho, spokesmen for the forests said today.

The decision was made in a final environmental impact statement and is a reversal of the "preferred" method outlined in a draft of the study.

In the draft statement, the U.S. Forest Service recommended in 1977 spraying 60,000 acres over a five-year period in the Idaho Panhandle, Clearwater and Nezperce National Forests mainly to eliminate brush that retards the growth of young coniferous trees.

Ralph D. Kizer, supervisor of the Panhandle National Forest, said the decision not to use the herbicides was based on public response to the draft study.

"More of the people responding to the draft environmental impact statement were opposed to spraying compounds containing TCDD (2,3,7,8-tetrachlorodibenzo-p-dioxin)," Kizer said. "The decision not to use 2,4,5-T and Silvex was based on this expressed public concern."

The alternative to the spraying of herbicides identified in the final statement involves clearing the brush through manual and mechanical means, fire and applying registered herbicides after first considering non-chemical methods.

The final statement identifies 2,457 acres to be treated during 1980 with other registered herbicides.

"What it amounts to is that the public overwhelmingly told the Forest Service not to use 2,4,5-T and Silvex and to use other herbicides only as a last resort," Kizer said. "We responded to that by making a major change in our program.

"We recognize that there may be some reduction in long range timber production as a result. But we do not believe it will be substantial."

Rare illness strikes two in Grandview

GRAND VIEW, Idaho (UPI) — Doctors are trying to find the cause of two cases of a rare blood disease known as aplastic anemia diagnosed in Grand View in the past two years.

Last year, Larry Beck, 6, came down with the disease and underwent a bone marrow transplant in Seattle. In October, Judy Mendoza, 37, learned she had the disease.

"In a town that small, especially in such a short time, with almost coincidental cases... Well, it's very suspicious as far as I'm concerned," said Bob Taylor, Mrs. Mendoza's doctor in Seattle.

"It's very odd to have less than 20 cases in the United States, and two of them are here," said Grand View Mayor Ben Johnson.

Doctors are able to find the cause in only one case of aplastic anemia in 10. Suspects include drugs, paint thinner, pesticides, cattle feed, dyes, household cleaning products and radiation.

Dr. Leonard Johnson, a Seattle doctor who is handling the Beck case, and Taylor have been unable to find a link between the two cases, but the Mendozas suspect crop-dusting as the cause.

Every day during the summer, planes fly over Grand View farms spraying Malathion, 2,4-D and other pesticides over the fields. Mrs. Mendoza said a crop-dusting plane flew over her home last summer spraying a chemical.

But crop-dusting is not the only source of chemicals in the area. Ten miles west of the town lies one of the nation's largest chemical dumping grounds, Wes-Con.

And across town is a plant where base chemicals are combined to produce pesticides.

As of yet, no evidence suggests either site is tied to the Beck or Mendoza case.

The water supply also has become suspect.

McClure elaborates wilderness views

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Idaho Sen. James McClure said today the designation of a River of No Return Wilderness in central Idaho should be decided by Idaho's leaders.

"I must state frankly that the idea of legislating a wilderness area here (in Washington) and a wilderness area there totally offends me," McClure said. "Idaho's leaders should have the forethought, the creativity and the willingness to examine our potential wilderness areas on a statewide basis.

"If the recent past is any forecast of the future, we will hopscotch from hot spot to hot spot, from controversy to controversy, from area to area never taking stock of our entire state — never asking the questions, 'How much total wilderness do we want? How much total wilderness can we afford.'"

McClure said the River of No Return Wilderness bill before the Senate lacks a balance between economic and environmental issues.

"The River of No Return Wilderness bill, as approved by the (Senate Energy and Natural Resource) committee, lacks the balance essential to resource allocation decisions," the Idaho Republican said. "It does not meet the tests of equity for the economy of the local area and the jobs and community stability so vital to affected Idahoans.

"Neither does it meet the test of national security regarding minerals vital to our natioanl defense or resources essential to our economy and our balance of payments.

"In any major land allocation decision there are critical tradeoffs to be considered. This bill gives lip service to that requirement, but falls any real objective test."

The bill as approved by the committee would create a 2.1 million-acre wilderness in central Idaho.

McClure said the bill should include a provision to allow mining in the proposed area. He said the cobalt reserves in the area are the largest in the United States, adding cobalt is "essential to our security and our national economy" because of its use in alloys for jet engines, magnets and cemented carbides for metal cutting and drilling.

He said the United States is dependent on cobalt imports from Zaire and Zambia, which are "extremely vulnerable."

Environmental groups are concerned mining of the area would damage bighorn sheep herds which graze over the cobalt belt.

"We should have enough collective brains to devise a plan that will permit us to develop domestic cobalt potential on a long-range basis and at the same time successfully manage an important bighorn sheep wildlife resource," McClure said. "We must reject the idea that prudent mining and wildlife management can't coexist."

Power shortage results in layoffs

POCATELLO, Idaho (UPI) — FMC Corp.'s phosphate plant operations in Pocatello will be crippled by a power cutoff midnight Monday forcing the layoff of 72 workers, plant officials said.

Thirty employees of contractors working at the plant also will be affected by the power cutback.

"Idaho Power Co. notified us that effective midnight tonight (Monday) they are reducing our power by 50 percent for an indefinite period," said FMC plant manager Harvey Herbert.

"This means that we will have to cut our production in half. It is indeed unfortunate to have to lay off workers just before the holiday season."

China buys Northwest wheat

PORTLAND, Ore. (UPI) — Two $5 million sales of Northwest wheat last week to China are expected to boost prices and sales for Idaho wheat growers who export 80 percent of their crop through Portland.

The first break in wheat sales to China came last year when Washington normalized relations with Peking. China immediately bought 1 million tons of American wheat from Gulf ports, where wheat was 10 to 25 cents a bushel cheaper than in Portland.

But recent market setbacks in Iran and Pakistan have made Portland wheat 54 cents a bushel cheaper than Gulf wheat. In addition to the lower sale price, it costs 12 to 25 cents a bushel less to ship wheat to China from Portland than the Gulf.

In mid-December, a second 32,000-ton load will leave for China from Portland and Dick Baum of Western Wheat Associates in Portland predicted China will buy half a million more tons before the end of the year.

Reagan's Idaho committee forms

BOISE (UPI) — Sen. James McClure, R-Idaho, Monday announced formation of an Idaho Ronald Reagan for President campaign committee.

McClure, co-chairman of the committee, will be joined by Secretary of State Pete Cenarrusa, Attorney General David Leroy, former Attorney General Wayne Kidwell, Senate President Pro-tem Reed Budge, House Speaker Ralph Olmstead and former Idaho Gov. Don Samuelson, all of whom will serve as co-chairmen of Idaho's efforts to elect the former California governor president.

McClure, who earlier this year served on a Reagan national exploratory committee, said about 200 Idahoans have joined a statewide advisory committee. He said a campaign office will be opened in Boise.

Alan 'Hap' Erwin

GOODING — Alan "Hap" Erwin, 65, of Bruneau, formerly of Gooding County, died Sunday in the Elmore County Hospital.

He was born April 4, 1914, at Marysville, Wash. In 1915, he moved with his family to Richfield, where he was educated. He married Annabelle Schroeder Dec. 26, 1937, at Jerome. They farmed at Richfield until moving to Wendell in 1942. They moved to Hagerman in 1951, and to Bruneau in 1974. He was a member of the Hagerman Masonic Lodge 78 AF and AM, and was past master of the Richfield Masonic Lodge 70 AF and AM. He served on the board of directors of the Jerome Co-op and the Hagerman School Board. He served as president of the Gooding County Farm Bureau and the Gooding County Tax Equality Association.

He is survived by his wife of Bruneau; a daughter, Mrs. Leland (Mary) Mink of Firth; two sons, Sidney F. Erwin of Bruneau and Frank C. Erwin of Hagerman; a brother, D. Scott Erwin of Richfield; two sisters, Mrs. H.W. (Joy) Riedeman of Twin Falls, and Mrs. Verne (Jeanne) Downs of Santa Ana, Calif.; and eight grandchildren. She was preceded in death by two brothers and a grandchild.

Services will be held at 1:30 p.m. Wednesday at the Thompson-Sears Chapel at Gooding with burial in the Richfield Cemetery. Friends may call at the chapel this afternoon and evening and until time of services Wednesday. The family suggests memorials to the Idaho Youth Ranch or a favorite charity.

Landry's had enough of Henderson's antics

DALLAS (UPI) — Coach Tom Landry, citing a series of incidents that culminated in Washington last Sunday, kicked talkative linebacker Thomas Henderson off the Dallas Cowboys Monday.

Henderson, rather than being placed on waivers, chose to announce his retirement from football.

The five-year veteran linebacker's contract thus remains the property of the Cowboys, but Landry made it clear Henderson would never again be a member of the team.

"This is it," said Landry. "Once I've done it, that's it."

The stunning move, catching fellow coaches and players by surprise, came in the midst of what free safety Cliff Harris called, "the toughest situation we've been in since I've been here."

Dallas has lost three of its last four games and seen a two-game lead melt away into a first-place deadlock in the NFC East with Philadelphia and Washington.

But Landry emphatically denied he removed Henderson from the roster just as a move to shake up his troops, who must meet the Houston Oilers on Thursday.

"I would never do something that affects the personal life of a player just to shake things up," said Landry.

The exact causes of the move, however, remained somewhat vauge. But it appeared that an incident along the sidelines during Dallas' 34-20 loss to Washington last Sunday played a part.

While his teammates were being knocked around on the field, Henderson smiled and mugged in front of a sideline television camera, pointing to a Dallas bandana hanging from his waist and lifting a finger into the air to signify that Dallas was still "No. 1."

As Henderson was being shown on the sideline, television announcer Pat Summerall told cohort Tom Brookshier over the air: "In our day there would probably be some disciplinary action over something like that."

Henderson, at a circus-like news conference, said he thought Landry's decision had more to do with a clash of personalities than anything else.

"He did mention that I had a poor game against Washington," Henderson said. "He said it was an accumulation of things. I think he felt I was manipulating the team for my own ventures.

"He said they were going to place me on waivers and I said I always wanted to remembered as a Cowboys, so I would retire.

"I can tell you how every rookie feels when they are cut from the Cowboys. It is the most hollow feeling in the world."

When asked about the sideline incident, Henderson said:

"It was brought up."

Landry declined to say that the impromptu television apperance was the final straw.

"I was aware of it, but everything was a factor," said Landry. "At the first of the season (after a brief, loud contract dispute) Thomas and I discussed what he needed to do to be a contributing member of our team.

"Overall he worked very hard. He would play well and then he would slip back and not be doing the job I wanted done so we would talk again. He didn't like to practice, but that wasn't it by itself. A lot of people don't like to practice.

"I've seen him play games as great as any linebacker I've ever seen. But there were not a lot of games like that. He had a lot of highs and lows.

"It hurts me a great deal to do what I did. It's no fun."

Henderson had been an extra vocal member of the Cowboys ever since he was drafted in the first round out of little Langston State in Oklahoma.

He began his own publicity campaign, in which he gave himself the nickname "Hollywood." Earlier this year he said he had almost achieved one of his goals — to get Landry to call him by his self-appointed nickname.

"In a meeting he said 'Holl,' and then stopped and said 'Thomas.' He almost did it."

"I have enough money to last me for 10 years," Henderson said at his retirement announcement Monday. "I don't need to play football."

Astros, Ryan agree

HOUSTON (UPI) — Strikeout specialist Nolan Ryan, who has pitched four no-hitters and is considered the hardest thrower in the major leagues, Monday signed a "historic" three-year contract with the Houston Astros reportedly worth $1 million a year.

Ryan, the first free agent ever signed by the Astros, refused to talk about the differences that developed between him and the California Angels, the team he left after the last eight of his 12 major league seasons.

Dick Moss, Ryan's agent, said Houston was the only team Ryan negotiated with among the 12 which chose the right-hander in the re-entry draft.

"We didn't have a bidding war," Moss said. "We made a proposal to a number of ballclubs and asked them not to make a bid. We said we would be back to them if they were the ballclub Nolan wanted to play for."

Ryan, 32, of nearby Alvin, Texas, received the lucrative pact with no deferred payments despite posting only a 26-27 record over the past two seasons at California and a mediocre career record of 167-159. Ryan also has had some arm problems the last two years.

Moss disclosed that Astros owner John McMullen told him during their first meeting "we may end up spending too much but no one can blame us if it's for Nolan Ryan."

Ryan's 2,909 strikeouts in 12 major league seasons is fourth best behind Hall of Famer Walter Johnson's 3,408.

"I would like to surpass Walter Johnson's strikeout record in the three or four years that I will be here," Ryan said.

The Astros have an option to retain Ryan for a fourth year in 1983. Neither the Astros nor Moss would discuss any other details of what Moss called "a truly historic" contract.

Ryan joins 20-game winner Joe Niekro and National League strikeout king J.R. Richard in Houston's starting rotation. Richard led the National League with 313 strikeouts last season and Ryan was tops in the American League with 223.

Along with his four no-hitters, Ryan holds the major league record for strikeouts in one season, 383, and most 300-strikeout seasons, five.

"On paper," Richard said, "it's the best pitching staff in baseball. But until we go down on the field and prove it, we're nothing."

Ryan said he dreamed about playing for the Astros when he was growing up.

"My wife and I are more excited about this opportunity than the contract itself," he said.

Astros Manager Bill Virdon said "With Nolan, I've got to think we have a better chance of bringing a pennant to Houston. That is my one and only desire."

During the first half of last season, Ryan had a 12-6 record including a one-hitter, a pair of two-hitters and two three-hitters. He finished 16-14.

Heavyweights boost Bruin wrestlers

By GARY ELIASSEN
Times-News sports editor

TWIN FALLS — For the first time in three years, the Twin Falls Bruin wrestling team will put a heavyweight on the mats.

Coach Andy Barron believes it represents a significant breakthrough for his young team.

"We have three big kids that I'm counting on to get us some points this year," said Barron, who took over the coaching duties three years ago and since then has had to forfeit points away in that heavyweight class (186-plus pounds). "Heck, we might even win one of those matches now."

To top it off, Barron not only has one heavyweight, but three, to choose from.

All sophomores, the three are Tyler Bradley, at 215 pounds the biggest, Brendan Huggins and Wally Steuland.

"Give them some experience and time, and I think we'll be hearing from them this year," said the coach.

The three are among 20 sophomores who have turned out for the Bruins this year. Five seniors and five juniors round out the squad.

It's a young, inexperienced team, but one which Barron is optimistic about.

"I came here three years ago with my first goal being to increase the number who turned out. Well, we've gone from 25 to 40 this year," he said. "Now, we're going to go out and see if we can't start winning some duel matches."

It's a big chore for the Bruin coach and his assistant, Bill Jones. In two years, the Bruins have only two duel match victories to their credit.

One of the wrestlers Barron is counting on to provide some points and leadership is Raub Owens, who went to state last year but failed to place.

Owens, a 155-pound senior, is well-built and quick on the mats.

"He's a good team leader, and I think he'll come through for us," said Barron.

According to the coach, other seniors with point potential this year include Richard Seeley, 132 pounds, and Ron Ryan, 167 pounds.

Backing up the seniors on the team are Scott Holloway and Jim Slenger, both 185-pound juniors and Troy Perkins, a 126-pound junior.

Another sophomore showing good early season form is Bobby Galvan in the 132-pound class.

"Right now we don't have any 98-pounders," he said. "But I'm hopeful one will come along."

The team suffered a blow this week when Gary Schwertfeger, the Bruins' only district champion last year, reported he may have to undergo an operation on a shoulder which has been bothering him all summer.

Despite the setback, Barron has been impressed with the hard work and desire the team has shown the first week of practice.

"If you're going to be a wrestler, you've got to want to do it," he said. "These guys have no one to lean on but themselves."

The team currently is concentrating on getting in shape for a tough opening tournament at Minico High School Nov. 30-Dec. 1.

"That's going to be a state caliber event," the coach noted. "The defending state champ, Nampa, will be there, along with Boise, Meridian, Skyline, and A-2 powers Teton, Snake River and Shelley."

"It'll be a quick baptism for our team," he laughed.

Following that tournament, the Bruins will host Jerome Dec. 4.

Nemesis for athletic directors

Butler hopes to dispel woman myths

By GARY TAYLOR
UPI Sports Writer

HOUSTON (UPI) — Twiss Butler is the nemesis of almost every male athletic director whose college fields a major football program in the United States.

She has heard their arguments that football makes the money to pay the bills for "lesser" sports and that equal spending for women athletes would bankrupt athletic budgets and force a restructuring of football programs.

Those arguments, she says, are myths that can be debunked by financial statistics from the NCAA but usually aren't because athletic administrators don't call attention to them and the male-dominated press is too lazy or too close to the athletic programs to use them.

A representative of the League of Women Voters on the Bay Area Title IX Coalition, the League City, Texas, resident wants to provide an alternative view about high school and college football, which she said "is something that is so overwhelmingly accepted as masculine that everybody is allowed to be completely babyish about it."

"The NCAA asserted that at many schools the profits from football pay for the rest of the sports programs, including women's sports," Butler said. "But by the NCAA's own figures, 81 percent of the athletic departments are not making money. Does that indicate football supports the other sports?"

The heart of the controversy is Title IX, the federal plan for equalizing athletic expenditures without regard to sex.

Butler says athletic directors of major college football programs have ignored implementation of federal guidelines to equalize spending for men and women athletes. "Women in college sports are receiving more money (since the federal government authorized the Title IX equal spending guidelines) but so have the big football programs," she said. "There has been an increase in spending all across the board."

Colleges without major football programs have easily adjusted to bring their spending in line with Title IX, she said.

She was skeptical about the NCAA's 19 percent figure for athletic departments making money because of football.

"It makes you wonder whether at the apparently successful schools that there isn't some really creative bookkeeping. The kind of things that turn up in their comments show some disregard for being meticulous," she said.

She said common misconceptions held by Title IX critics were that equal spending guidelines would force colleges to start women's football teams or force colleges to support a woman swimmer with the same financial considerations that it does a male football player.

"What we might get for a female swimmer is a better all-around competitive situation and program," Butler said. "We might get the coach put on full time instead of half time."

Title IX became law in 1972 and the Department of Health, Education and Welfare was charged with enforcing it.

Cougs' Henry Rono ties NCAA record

BETHLEHEM, Pa. (UPI) — Henry Rono of Washington State tied an NCAA record Monday with his third individual championship and Texas-El Paso nipped Oregon for the team title in the 41st NCAA Cross Country Championship at Lehigh University.

Rono, a native of Kenya who holds three world records in track, ran the 10,000-meter course at Saucon Valley Fields in a time of 28:19.4 to defeat defending champion Alberto Salazar of Oregon, who was clocked in 28:27.6.

In adding to his individual titles in 1976 and 1977, Rono tied the NCAA mark of three championships held by Gerry Lindgren of Washington State in 1966, 1967 and 1969 and Steve Prefontaine of Oregon in 1970, 1971 and 1973.

Texas-El Paso won its second straight team championship and its fourth in the last five years. The Miners picked up 86 points to 93 for Oregon. Penn State was well behind the two teams but picked up 186 points for third. Colorado and Auburn finished fourth and fifth.

UTEP placed three runners in the top 12. Jim Rotich picked up a fourth-place finish in 29:03.0, Mike Musyoki was sixth in 29:14.3 and Suleiman Nyambui was 12th in 29:30.7.

Rudy Chapa was Oregon's second scorer behind Salazar, finishing 10th overall in 29:28.0.

Rotich held the lead at the one-mile mark, going out in 4:20. Salazar, who won in a light snowfall last year in Madison, Wis., then took control on the sunny 60-degree day.

Rams' Wendell Tyler runs for 17-yard gain against Atlanta in first quarter

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Vince Ferragamo had officially been out of action for four weeks. But for all intents, he has been out of action for four years.

Given his first NFL start Monday night, the quarterback threw touchdown passes of 29 and 40 yards to lift the Los Angeles Rams to a 20-14 victory over the Atlanta Falcons and a share of the lead in the NFC West.

"I played a little rusty," Ferragamo said. "I was not real acquainted with our offensive line or our backs. It's a big lift to get something like this under your belt."

Los Angeles Coach Ray Malavasi had little choice in starting Ferragamo, with Pat Haden out with a broken finger and the even-more inexperienced rookie Jeff Rutledge just not ready. His other option was veteran Bob Lee, a real estate salesman lured out of retirement by the Rams two weeks.

"We have all the confidence in the world in Vince," Malavasi said. "He called his own plays 60 or 65 percent of the time. We would give him some first down plays and maybe some critical third down plays but there's nothing we can give him when they are in a blitz."

The Rams, now 6-6, are tied with New Orleans atop the division while Atlanta fell to 4-8.

Ferragamo, a four-year veteran from nearby Torrance, Calif., and the University of Nebraska, completed 9-of-22 passes for 171 yards and the two touchdowns.

The Rams grabbed a 7-0 lead 4:19 into the game on Ferragmao's 29-yard pass to Preston Dennard in the end zone. The TD was set up when cornerback Sid Justin intercepted Falcon quarterback June Jones' second pass of the game and returned it to the Atlanta 45.

Los Angeles made it 14-0 with 36 seconds left in the half on the 40-yard touchdown pass from Ferragamo to Billy Waddy, cappoing a drive of 76 yards in seven plays.

Atlanta narrowed the Rams' lead to 14-7 10 minutes into the third period on a 15-yard pass from Jones to Wallace Francis. The touchdown march covered 76 yards in 10 plays with halfback Bubba Bean rushing three times for 24 yards and catching a 13-yard pass from Jones, playing for the injured Steve Bartkowski.

The Rams made it 20-7 at 7:14 of the final period on an 11-yard touchdown run by Cullen Bryant. Bryant's sweep into the end zone climaxed a drive of 48 yards in six plays, the longest an 18-yard pass from Ferragamo to Terry Nelson. Frank Corral's extra point attempt went wide.

Jones fired a 33-yard touchdown pass to Francis with 4:11 left in the game to close out the scoring. The drive covered 80 yards with Jones completing 4-of-6 passes for 77 yards, including a 19-yarder to Francis and a 14-yarder to Al Jenkins.

On the night, Jones completed 11-of-24 passes for 181 yards and was intercepted twice.

Wendell Tyler, who fumbled three times, was the game's leading rusher with 111 yards in 21 carries.

In the third quarter, the Rams got the ball on their 47 following a 35-yard kickoff return by Drew Hill and drove to the Atlanta 25 before Tyler fumbled for the second time in the game and Mike Zele recovered for the Falcons. Jones connected on a 49-yard pass to Bean to the Rams' 32 on Atlanta's next series, but Francis fumbled on the next play and the Rams took possession again.

Olympic representative says U.S. should consider Pan Am pullout

©1979, The Los Angeles Times

President Robert J. Kane of the United States Olympic Committee said Monday he has asked the group to re-examine U.S. participation in the Pan-American Games.

Kane, interviewed at his Florida home by telephone from Los Angeles, confirmed that he had complained strongly in a speech at a closed meeting of the USOC Executive Board in Dallas last weekend about the way the American team was treated last July at the Pan American Games in San Juan, Puerto Rico.

He said the USOC's administrative committee was instructed to report on the matter at the next executive board meeting in January.

Kane said the San Juan games were not the first time since the Pan-American Games were founded in 1951 that an American team has been badly treated.

"We're just too powerful, too rich and too successful in this competition, and we don't get ordinarily decent treatment," he said. "And my feeling is we ought to examine whether it's in our best interest to stay in the Games."

Kane said he referred in his weekend remarks to incidents involving the arrest of Bobby Knight, the coach of the American basketball team; the temporary disqualification of American long jumper Carl Lewis; the burning of American flags on a few occasions and the booing of the Flag on occasion when it was raised during the Games.

Knight, whose regular job is coaching the Indiana University basketball team, was arrested in San Juan and accused of striking a policeman. He refused to appear for trial and was sentenced in absentia to nine months in jail and a $500 fine. The coach has said he has no intention of going to Puerto Rico to serve the sentence.

"Bobby Knight was a good foil for them, but he got a bad shuffle," Kane said. "He did not hit the policeman, although he did shove him." The USOC president said he had satisfied himself that these were the circumstances by talking to witnesses from both the U.S. and Brazil.

As for the long-jumping incident, Kane said he personally protested the disqualification of Lewis, finally rescinded, for showing up three minutes late to a trial event that was never actually held in any case.

He was disturbed, too, by incidents involving the American flag and by the booing of the governor of Puerto Rico, Carlos Romero Barcelo, an advocate of Puerto Rican statehood, at the games' opening ceremonies, he said.

Miguel de Capriles, a vice president of the Pan-American Sports Organization, who is on the USOC's executive board, responded to Kane's remarks at the Dallas meeting.

De Capriles, a professor of law at the Hastings Law School of the University of California in San Francisco, said in a telephone interview Monday that he had tried to explain that nothing is to be gained by withdrawing from the Games.

In international sports competition, as in the world at large, "You've got to learn to get along with people who do not see eye to eye with you, and even don't like you," De Capriles said.

De Capriles said it is important to recognize that U.S. participation "reflects our prestige in the world at large. At the present time, we are at a low ebb in our international prestige....But in sports our prestige has always been very high....We may be able to help the United States by staying in the games and promoting our sports image."

The Pan-American Games are held every four years, the year before the Olympics. The American team has always won the most medals, and was the easy victor in San Juan. The next games will be in 1983 in Caracas, Venezuela.

Boston U shocked by choice

BOSTON (UPI) — A dejected Rick Taylor, one of the more talkative football coaches, was at a loss for words Monday to explain why his 8-1-1 Boston University team was not chosen for the NCAA Division I-AA playoffs.

A committee comprised of athletic directors from Lafayette, Bucknell, Northeastern and New Hampshire Monday selected Lehigh, 9-2.

WCAC to experiment with 45-second clock

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The West Coast Athletic Conference executive committee Monday approved the experimental use of the 45-second clock and the offense player control foul rules for the 1979-80 basketball season.

The changes, previously approved by the NCAA for experimentation, were requested by the WCAC coaches.

The experiment will involve Santa Clara, St. Mary's, University of San Francisco, Loyola-Marymount, Pepperdine, the University of San Diego, Gonzaga, Seattle University and the University of Portland.

Under the 45-second clock rule, a team must shoot the ball within the time span after the ball has been put in play. Anytime the ball is shot and missed but hits the basket cylinder, 45 seconds is given the team that rebounds the ball.

The 45-second clock will be turned off during the final five minutes in regular time and in overtime.

The offense player control foul rule will be counted as a team foul, not as a personal foul.

If the player dribbles or shoots the ball and charges into the opposing player, the offense team will be charged with a team foul, and the defense team will inbound the ball.

Day an all-star

TWIN FALLS — Valley High School's Bebe Day is a member of the Canyon Conference all-star volleyball team which was named last Friday.

Her name did not appear in the article in the Times-News which appeared Sunday due to a source error.

BSU films tonight

TWIN FALLS — Films of Boise State's Saturday victory over Cal Poly will be shown tonight at the Littletree Inn.

The public is invited to the 7:30 p.m. session sponsored by the Boise Athletic Association.

Redskin officer to quit

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Edward Bennett Williams will step down as chief operating officer of the Washington Redskins and be replaced by majority stockholder Jack Kent Cooke, published reports said Monday.

Reports in The Washington Post and Washington Star said Williams had talked with NFL Commissioner Pete Rozelle about stepping down as the Redskins' president. Williams, who recently bought the Baltimore Orioles of baseball's American League, owns 14 per cent of the Redskins. Cooke owns the remaining stock.

Minter, seniors honored

BOISE (UPI) — The Boise State Bronco Athletic Association Monday named tailback Cedric Minter and the team's 10 seniors as players of the week.

Minter, who rushed for 201 yards, three touchdowns and gained 1,012 yards for the 1979 season, also was named Big Sky Conference offensive player of the week along with Nevada-Reno's Jeff Wright.

The 10 seniors who played their last game for Boise Saturday are: defensive tackle Doug Scott, nose guard Willie Tufono, free safety Curt Chandler, cornerback Randy Stewart, linebacker John Hall, offensive linemen Bill Roberds, Renny Buckner and Bob Markovich, wide receiver Mike Brady and tight end Jim Balch.

Hawks renew Brown pact

ATLANTA (UPI) — Atlanta Hawks Coach Hubie Brown has signed a five-year contract with the Atlanta team, it was announced Monday.

Hawks spokesman Chet Wright declined to disclose the terms of the contract.

The 46-year-old Brown was named head coach in 1976 and has compiled a 130-135 record at Atlanta.

The Hawks, with a 12-7 record so far this year and their best start in recent years, are the National Basketball Association Central Division leaders.

W. Virginia fires coach

MORGANTOWN, W. Va. (UPI) — The axe held for months over West Virginia head football coach Frank Cignetti fell Monday when athletic director Richard Martin announced that Cignetti's contract would not be renewed for the 1980 season.

Instead, Cignetti, 41, who is also battling a form of cancer, was offered a position as Martin's administrative assistant.

"It's disappointing," is all Cignetti would say when asked shortly after he had met with Martin. He declined further comment, saying he wanted to talk with his assistant coaches, mull over his situation and decide whether he would accept the assistant athletic director's position.

Ford NBA player of week

NEW YORK (UPI) — Kansas City guard Phil Ford, whose playmaking and shooting led the Kings to four straight victories, Monday was named National Basketball Association Player of the Week.

Ford scored 106 points in four games for a 26.5 average and turned in back-to-back [illegible] efforts in Philadelphia and Los Angeles. Ford concluded the week ending Nov. 18 with 28 points and 12 assists in a road victory at Denver Sunday night.

Dodgers sign Stanhouse

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — The Los Angeles Dodgers, a team filled with stars, have added another one to their galaxy.

Don Stanhouse, who saved 21 games for the American League champion Baltimore Orioles last year, has agreed to a five-year contract with the Dodgers, Los Angeles Vice President Al Campanis announced Saturday.

Dolphins to replace Bob Griese

MIAMI (UPI) — Don Strock has replaced veteran Bob Griese as the Miami Dolphins' No. 1 quarterback, Dolphins Coach Don Shula disclosed Monday.

Shula said he talked to Griese on the plane flying back to Miami after the Dolphins lost a crucial game Sunday to the Cleveland Browns, 30-24 in overtime. Shula said he told Griese he is going to start Strock in next Sunday's game against the Colts at Baltimore.

"Anytime you move a player of Bob Griese's magnitude, it's a difficult decision," Shula said.

The 34-year-old Griese, in his 13th year with Miami, long has been considered one of the premier quarterbacks in the NFL because of his play-calling and passing accuracy. But the man who led the Dolphins to three Super Bowl appearances, including two NFL championships, has been ineffective this season.

The 6-foot-5 Strock will be 29 this month and is in his sixth year with the Dolphins, who consider him the best backup quarterback in the league. Shula sent him in against the Browns early in the fourth period after Griese threw his second interception of the game and his offense had produced only 10 points.

Strock promptly directed touchdown drives of 72 and 61 yards that put Miami ahead 24-17 late in the game.

Strock, drafted in the fifth round out of Virginia Tech in 1973, has completed 145-of-272 passes for a total 1,822 yards and 21 touchdowns in his career with Miami. He has been intercepted 13 times. More importantly, Strock, in 12 starts, has an 8-3 record.

He came on to "save" victory over the Minnesota Vikings earlier this year after Griese was hurt, and started and won the next game against the Chicago Bears.

The end of a rough day should be smooth.

It's looking like Sugar for Alabama

ATHENS, Ga. (UPI) — The Southeastern Conference ruled today that the Sugar Bowl can invite Alabama even if the top-ranked Crimson Tide loses to Auburn on Dec. 1 and ties Georgia for the SEC championship — if Georgia loses to Georgia Tech next Saturday.

Georgia asked the conference Sunday night, through Commissioner Boyd McWhorter, to relieve it of its obligation to represent the conference in the Sugar Bowl if the Bulldogs, now 5-5, should wind up with a losing record.

McWhorter submitted that request to the SEC's six-man executive committee, headed by Dr. Porter Fortune, chancellor at the University of Mississippi, and the committee agreed to it in an unanimous vote.

McWhorter said he had been instructed to ask the Sugar Bowl to waive the SEC's "last appearance" rule "for this year only" so that Alabama could get the bowl berth even if it doesn't win the league title outright.

The Sugar Bowl Association, acting through its president Robert Fasbacher, agreed.

"The essence of this accommodation," said McWhorter, "is that if Auburn beats Alabama and if Georgia Tech beats Georgia, the Sugar Bowl Association has agreed to select the Southeastern Conference representative for its Jan. 1, 1980 game."

Georgia is 5-1 within the SEC but only 5-5 overall and would drop to 5-6 if it should lose its non-conference game with Georgia Tech. Alabama, ranked No. 1 nationally and boasting a 10-0 record, would also wind up with a 5-1 SEC record if the Crimson Tide should be upset by Auburn on Dec. 1.

Under SEC rules, if two teams tie for the championship, the automatic Sugar Bowl berth goes to the one which has not been there most recently, in this case Georgia since Alabama played in the last two Sugar Bowl games.

Georgia officials said they initiated the request solely on their own and not because of any outside pressure.

They did not so speedily but left the understanding that the Bulldogs would keep their Sugar Bowl date if they beat Georgia Tech to wind up 6-5 and Alabama loses.

"I think this will clear the air so we can direct our total concentration on preparing for our state championship contest ... the tradition-rich Georgia Tech," said Georgia Coach Vince Dooley. "This action should lay to rest all questions concerning Georgia's position regarding the Sugar Bowl."

Kentucky gets invite to Hall of Fame

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (UPI) — The University of Kentucky was extended a conditional invitation Monday to play South Carolina in the third annual Hall of Fame Bowl Dec. 29.

"The Hall of Fame Bowl has extended an invitation to the University of Kentucky to play in the Dec. 29 Hall of Fame Bowl in Birmingham provided they defeat the University of Tennessee in their game this weekend," said Fred Sington, president of the bowl.

"Should Kentucky not defeat Tennessee, the following teams are under consideration: Brigham Young, East Carolina, Maryland, Missouri, Navy, Rutgers, SMU, UCLA and Virginia," Sington said.

South Carolina, 7-3 with one game remaining, accepted a bid to the Birmingham bowl Saturday after defeating Wake Forest 35-14.

Tokyo for Notre Dame instead of bowl

SOUTH BEND, Ind. (UPI) — Notre Dame's traveling squad will be going halfway around the world this week to play Miami of Florida, but for the first time since 1975 the Fighting Irish will not be going to a bowl game.

The Irish will take a 6-4 record to Tokyo next Saturday to meet Miami of Florida in the "Mirage Bowl." The game, which the Japanese will deck out much like an American college bowl game, will be the closest the Irish will come to a post-season contest.

Coach Dan Devine ruled that out Sunday when he said he hit an all-time coaching low in Notre Dame's loss to 14th ranked Clemson.

The Tigers, who spotted the Irish a 10-0 lead, used a ball control offense and the kicking of Obed Ariri to win 16-10 to improve their record to 8-2. After the game, Clemson accepted a bid to play Baylor in the Peach Bowl.

The Irish started the game as if they were going to run right through a Clemson defense that was second in the country in fewest points allowed per game. Notre Dame amassed 297 yards total offense in the first half, more than Clemson had allowed all season. But turnovers and Clemson's rushing attack proved too much for the Irish.

"I tell you, I've never felt lower in my entire life than I do right now," Devine said. "I'm disappointed, but mostly for my players."

Devine said his team had been offered a post-season trip regardless of the outcome of the Clemson game. But he declined.

"I can't say which game it was," Devine added.

The four losses are the most by any Notre Dame team since the Irish went 2-7 in 1963. Considering Notre Dame registered close wins over Georgia Tech, South Carolina and Michigan, the record could have been worse.

Richmond coach in hot water

Coach Jim Tait, of the University of Richmond, is expected to be fired after an 0-11 season.

Tait's fate was sealed Saturday when the Spiders lost to intrastate rival William and Mary, 24-10. His future has looked bleak since early-season losses to Virginia and Virginia Military Institute.

Tait's assistant coaches were also relieved of responsibilities in the usual house cleaning that follows a coach's dismissal. Athletic Director Chuck Boone will head a search committee to be appointed by President E. Bruce Heilman.

"Coach Tait is an outstanding gentleman who has served the university well, but we feel a change in leadership in the football pgrgram is needed at this time," Boone said in a prepared statement.

CEDRIC MINTER of Boise State and Nevada-Reno's Jeff Wright have been selected the Big Sky Conference's co-offensive players of the week while Northern Arizona's Jim Anders received the defensive honor.

Minter, a 5-11, 180-pound junior tailback from Boise, had his first 200-yard game of the 1979 season as he rushed for 210 yards on 29 carries in Boise State's 56-14 win over Cal Poly-San Luis Obispo Saturday. He ended the season with 1,012 yards, the second straight season he has rushed for over 1,000 yards.

He is currently the all-time Big Sky rushing leader with 3,415 yards with a season to play. In Boise State's latest victory, Minter had three touchdowns and caught two passes for 11 yards.

CEDRIC MAXWELL, sporting a neck brace after an automobile accident over the weekend, said Monday he expects to play in Wednesday night's game against the New Jersey Nets.

Maxwell, just getting over a minor bout with the flu, and teammate Jeff Judkins were involved in the accident, which occurred early Sunday morning after the team returned from a Saturday night game in New York. Judkins' jeep was clipped by a truck coming out of Boston's Sumner Tunnel.

THE NEW YORK JETS Monday waived kicker Toni Linhart and replaced him with rookie Dave Jacobs of Syracuse.

Linhart, who started the season at Baltimore, was signed four weeks ago to replace Pat Leahy, the AFC's leading scorer last season after he suffered a knee injury and was placed on injured reserve. But Linhart missed two extra points that proved to be the difference in a 14-12 loss to Buffalo last week and missed a thrid consecutive extra point and a field goal attempt in a loss to Chicago on Sunday.

INDIANA COACHES Monday night chose quarterback Tim Clifford as the Hoosier's most valuable player for the 1979 football season.

The announcement was made at the annual IU football awards banquet.

Clifford broke four season records while guiding Indiana to a 7-4 record for a fourth place finish in the Big Ten and a post-season berth in the Holiday Bowl. The Junior from Cincinnati, Ohio, set Indiana season records in four categories: pass attempts with 259, pass completions with 149, passing yardage with 1,907and total offense with 1,978 yards.

WYOMING UNIVERSITY QUARTERBACK PHIL DAVIS, a 5-11, 183-pound sophomore from Cerritos, Calif., was named Western Athletic Conference offensive player of the week Monday for leading the Cowboys to a 21-13 victory over the University of Hawaii.

Davis, who boke Wyoming's single-season total offense record in the contest, scored two touchdowns in the league match, putting Wyoming ahead to stay with a one-yard sneak in the second quarter.

After a Hawaii fumble in the fourth quarter, the quarterback took the Cowboys 34 yards down field and scored from five yards out to clinch the game. He rushed nine times for 29 yards and completed 6 of 13 pass attmpts for 68 yards in the contest.

THE BOARD OF DIRECTORS and shareholders of the New York Mets announced Monday their intention to sell the National League team in the near future.

It is anticipated that the agreement for the sale of the club will be signed before the end of December and that the sale will be completed prior to the start of the 1980 season following National League approval.

A committee consisting of William A. Cameron, Louis Hoynes Jr., and Gerald E. Schanley has been appointed by the board and the shareholders to make all necessary arrangements for the sale.

LOS ANGELES LAKERS COACH JACK MCKINNEY, seriously injured in a bicycle accident Nov. 8, was transferred to Centinela Hospital Monday.

McKinney fell from his bike near his Rancho Palos Verdes home, sustaining severe head injuries. He was on the critical list for several days but doctors said he is showing steady improvement.

"McKinney is being moved to give him specific care in reference to the injuries he sustained," said Lakers team physician Robert Kerlan. "He's improved enough for us to be able to move him."

BIG TEN CHAMPION OHIO STATE landed nine players, including quarterback Art Schlichter, and third-place Michigan placed six players on the 1979 United Press International all Big Ten team announced Monday.

The Buckeyes, who won the conference title with a 8-0 record and were 11-0 overall, had three players chosen for the first team offense and five players selected for the first team defense. In addition, Vlade Janakievski was named as the first team kicker.

The Big Ten coaches who participated in the balloting made only three players unanimous selections: guard Ken Fritz of Ohio State and linemen Curtis Greer and linebacker Ron Simpkins of Michigan. All three are seniors.

Schlichter, the sophomore quarterback who was a dual threat as a passer and runner, was a clear choice for the first team over Tim Clifford of Indiana. Mark Hermann, the highly touted Purdue quarterback, was an honorable mention selection along with Mark Carlson of Minnesota, the leader in the conference in passing statistitics.

The third offensive selection from Ohio State was center Tom Waugh.

Jockey Pincay reaches 4,000

NEW YORK (UPI) — No one knew it at the time, but Laffit Pincay Jr. became the ninth rider in racing history to reach the 4,000 victory plateau when he won the First Flight Handicap at Aqueduct Sunday on Gladiolus.

A recheck of Pincay's figures revealed the milestone Monday, when he added two more winners on Wanena in the third race and My Daughter Cuca in the ninth.

Pincay, who was the country's top money-winning jockey five straight years from 1970-74, is the leader again and is aiming for $8 million in total purses for the year, a goal never before achieved. With approximately $48.5 million in career earnings, he trails only Willie Shoemaker, who has earned more than $50 million.

The other jockeys to achieve 4,000 victories were Shoemaker, Johnny Longden, Eddie Arcaro, Steve Brooks, Walter Blum, Bill Hartack, Avelino Gomez and Larry Snyder.

Bucs can clinch playoff spot this week

TAMPA, Fla. (UPI) — The Tampa Bay Buccaneers could nail down a playoff spot in the Central Division of the National Football League Sunday if the Chicago Bears lose to Detroit on Thursday.

But Tampa Coach John McKay said Monday he doesn't think the Bears will lose and said the Buccaneers can't afford to look to anyone else for help in winning the spot.

"I think the only team that has a chance to beat the Bears are the Buccaneers," McKay said. "We have to win all of our games. We ain't going (to the playoffs) unless we win all our games."

Colt loss embarrassing

BALTIMORE (UPI) — Colts Coach Ted Marchibroda said Monday he will make changes in the starting lineup because of Baltimore's "embarrassing" 50-21 defeat Sunday against the New England Patriots.

"It was an embarrassing loss for us," Marchibroda told a news conference. "I will be making changes in our ball club for our next game, but I'm not going to say what those changes will be."

The Colts' latest defeat means Baltimore must win all four remaining games to finish with a 7-7 record.

The team hosts the Miami Dolphins Sunday. The Dolphins shut out the Colts 19-0 two weeks ago.

Eye patch for Pastorini

HOUSTON (UPI) — Dan Pastorini wore a patch over his painful right eye, but there was no time off for him or anyone else Monday as the Houston Oilers went to work for what several players bragged would be a Thanksgiving Day feast.

Veteran defensive tackle Elvin Bethea said he had been anticipating playing the Dallas Cowboys since their last regular season meeting in 1974. The two Texas teams meet at 1 p.m. Thursday in Texas Stadium.

Noll has no excuses

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — Pittsburgh Steelers' Coach Chuck Noll wasn't about to make any excuses for his team's 35-7 loss to the San Diego Chargers Sunday; nor was he likely to accept any his players might dare to offer.

"It wasn't that we took them lightly," Noll said Monday of the Chargers, who tagged the Steelers, 9-3, with their most lopsided defeat in 10 years and dropped them into a tie with Houston for first place in the AFC Central Division.

"They were the best team we played all year. They out-executed us. They didn't surprise us. They did exactly what we expected them to do."

The Steelers, or at least the Steelers' offense, just didn't have the capabilities to overcome the Chargers' game plan, Noll said.

"Our defense did what it had to do," he said. "But those eight turnovers we had put us in the position of having to come from behind, and that got us into trouble."

Cowboys facing 'trouble'

DALLAS (UPI) — With his team turning from bland to sour, coach Tom Landry has no trouble assessing the situation with the Dallas Cowboys.

"I'd say we are in a lot of trouble," said Landry. "We've been beaten three of the last four games and haven't looked good. We don't look like the Cowboys of last year."

Dallas' 34-20 loss to Washington Sunday not only left the Cowboys tied for the NFC East lead with the Redskins and Philadelphia Eagles, but it left them in a deflated state going into the Thanksgiving Day battle with the streaking Houston Oilers.

"We are just not hitting on all cylinders," said linebacker D.D. Lewis. "But if you look back in past seasons when we have had a lull, the defense usually comes back and keeps people from scoring.

By Oswald Jacoby and Alan Sontag

If South can see the singleton jack of hearts in the East hand he will make seven.

Today's South won the diamond, drew trumps with one lead, led his nine of hearts and let it ride to East's jack. East returned a club. Now South led a second heart, rose with dummy's ace and wound up with egg all over his chin.

South explained to us that he was the most unlucky bridge player in the world and that only the singleton jack of hearts in the East hand could have led to his defeat.

South had been unlucky, but he had overlooked a perfect safety play that would have guaranteed his contract against any and all combinations of adverse cards. That safety play would have been to cash dummy's ace of hearts instead of leading the nine for a finesse. If neither honor dropped South would return to his hand, lead the nine of clubs and let it ride.

Suppose that it lost to the jack. The defenders would only have two hearts left. Two of dummy's hearts could be ruffed and eventually the fifth heart would set up.

You can check on all other combinations and will see that South is sure of that club discard once he has made this safety play.
